Tourism forecast: Carmel to see increase in $ signs

By PAUL WOLF

IT IS a classic understatement: Carmel's city budget relies heavily on the tourist dollar.

While it is tough to make a precise accounting of what revenue originates at home and what comes from the outside, certain facts do speak for themselves.

Consider:

- Carmel-by-the-Sea is a town of only 4,239 residents, but it supports 49 motels and inns, which total 985 lodging units. It's not surprising, then, that its 10-percent room tax — also called the hostelry tax — is its biggest single revenue source.

This year, hostelry is 32 percent of Carmel's $8.1 million budget. That kind of contribution to a city's income is not too typical. Consider a town like the City of Solvang, another magnet for visitors, also with a population under 5,000. In that town, the hostelry tax makes up only 23 percent of its budget.

And then there is a town like Pacific Grove, which undeniably gets its share of visitors, who stay in its 1,100 rooms. But the hotel-motel business provides a smaller 19 percent of the budget. With more than 16,000 residents, Pacific Grove gets the most money from property tax.

In Carmel, hostelry tax revenues appear to be flat right now. For the months of January, February and March, the room tax amounted to $501,247, a few hundred dollars down from last year during the same period.

Sandy Davenport, the city's financial services coordinator, urges that no one should jump to conclusions about a persisting recession in relation to tourism. This summer's hostelry figures will be the best test.

- The domain of sales tax is murkier. Nevertheless, it is assumed that "the lion's share" of that source is generated by tourism, according to Toni Jepson, executive director of the Carmel Business Association.

She knows of no studies that have sorted out the composition of Carmel's sales tax.

While it is true that locals patronize art

CARMEL'S TOURISM in the 1992 season likely will be stable, when measured against the 1991 visitor flow, with some guests staying longer and spending more money than they did last year.

That positive prediction came from Toni Jepson, executive director of Carmel Business Association (CBA).

"We're very optimistic," she said when questioned by The Pine Cone about what sort of tourist season local businesses might experience from June through October.

"Last year," Jepson continued, "Carmel had a total of about a million vacation visitors. This time, we think the figure will be stable, or a little higher. An area of even greater optimism is this: we think more visitors will be staying longer, staying overnight, taking in cultural events, spending more money."

Far ahead

Right now, Jepson said, "some Carmel inns are 40 percent above last year in terms of advance bookings. The U.S. Open Championship (June 15-21) has a lot to do with that. But advance bookings for July are up five percent (over 1991), and for August it's a three percent increase. So far the signs indicate a very good year."

CARMEL TOURISTS

Even though there is more competition today for the tourist dollar — "Cannery Row, the Wharf and downtown Monterey have become much more aggressive," Jepson said — Carmel has time-tested magnetism on its side.

"No matter what else they do on the peninsula," the CBA leader explained, "tourists come here. We've never had the wherewithal to do an accurate survey (of

Countdown to U.S. Open

IF SOMEONE were going to cast a movie called "Life on the Links in Pebble Beach" Head Golf Professional RJ Harper would be a likely choice to play himself. Blonde, blue eyed, with a strong jaw and easy manner, he epitomizes the casual elegance of the famed golf resort. Originally from Tennessee, he has been head pro at Pebble Beach for three years.

A southern softness can still be detected in his voice when he says, "Being the host pro at the U.S. Open at Pebble Beach is the highlight of my career. It's pure excitement. I've been waiting years for this."

Harper joined Pebble Beach Company in March 1986 as assistant golf professional, became the assistant manager at the Pebble Beach Golf Shop six months later and was named head pro in 1989. He holds an undergraduate degree in social sciences from Rhodes College in Memphis, Tennessee, a masters in education from East Stroudsburg State University in Pennsylvania and acquired his PGA classification in 1989. He is the president of the AT&T Pebble Beach Junior Golf Association and Pebble Beach Company tournament director for the annual AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

MEETINGS BETWEEN The Lone Cypress Co. and Hyatt Hotels Corp., which manages the Monterey Hyatt Regency, are leading observers to speculate that the Lone Cypress Co. is seeking to sell a portion of its 5,300-acre Pebble Beach holdings to alleviate its debt burden.

Currently, the Monterey Hyatt Regency leases land from the Pebble Beach Co. in an agreement that, along with renewal options, will continue until the year 2025. In a complex arrangement, Pebble Beach Co. doesn't own all of the land the Hyatt occupies, and a third party owns the Hyatt Regency buildings. The property is adjacent to the Old Del Monte Golf Course which is currently owned and operated by the Pebble Beach Co.

While a Lone Cypress Co. official confirms one meeting was held, an unconfirmed source claims three meetings were held on May 5 at the Hyatt Regency, and May 8 and May 13 at Fairway One in Pebble Beach.

Nick Pritzker, president of Hyatt development, met with Lone Cypress principals, Matsatsugu Takabayashi, Paul Leach, and Daisuke Saji as well as Tom

Lone Cypress appoints new VP

By DON MONKERUD

ON TUESDAY, the Pebble Beach Co. officially announced Hiroshi Watanabe was appointed to the post of executive vice president of the Lone Cypress Co.

As reported in the May 21 issue of The Pine Cone, Watanabe surfaced at the U.S. Open Media Day pairings with the top management of the Lone Cypress Co.: Chairman and President Matsatsugu Takabayashi, Director and Secretary-Treasurer Paul Leach, and PBC President Tom Oliver.

Although Leach warned last week that "you shouldn't read anything into the U.S. Open media day pairings," PBC public relations spokesperson Candace Ingram admitted that chief adviser Daisuke Saji would be leaving with his assistants, including Koichi Noda.

"It's kind of odd compared to how we do business in the U.S.," said Ingram. "The bank is part of the ownership of Lone Cypress, and Saji is a bridge between the bank, Lone Cypress and Pebble Beach. Saji is the chief advisor to Lone Cypress for the bank."

According to Ingram, the move fits with the original plan of Lone Cypress.

The haunting shadow of Rio Park

RIO PARK, like Halloween, will come back to haunt us. Plan on it. The more the city council attempts to deal with the legitimate issue of Pescadero Canyon, the more Rio Park will raise its flood plain head. Our prediction is based on simple logic.

The former city council, including then-Councilman Ken White, supported the idea of buying an over-priced piece of land, naming it Rio Park and consequently creating a $1.75 million indebtedness.

Now, the council, led by new-Mayor Ken White, rationalizes that while Pescadero Canyon is a worthy cause, it does not want to go into further debt.

Instead, the council hints at exploring "options" to the outright city purchase of land in Pescadero Canyon. These options include a land swap, exploring outside funding sources and tightening up zoning restrictions.

Bosh.

If they face the matter squarely, the council will discover that its options most likely will not add up to a solution that will protect Pescadero Canyon to anyone's complete satisfaction. And to say that they don't want to add to the city's land-purchase debts is to equate Rio Park with Pescadero Canyon.

Double bosh.

What we have before us is a lesson learned, which Mayor White as an educator should appreciate: In the zeal to buy land, people frequently ignore the selective process and later wonder why they have a white elephant on their hands.

If we pause, we will see that Rio Park has come back to haunt the council by precluding it — at this juncture — from making a more important acquisition called Pescadero Canyon.

example of your failure to attempt to achieve some degree of normal journalistic objectivity.

As to Mr. Meyer's accusations about The Village Watch attacking Mr. Laiolo and "mudslinging," here again the writer (like Mr. Kremer) offers not a single word of evidence to disprove the factual accuracy of our Village Watch article. Not one word of rebuttal. If Mr. Laiolo, Mr. Meyer or anyone else will please set forth how we were incorrect in any statement about Mr. Laiolo, we will publish that correction. Until then, it behooves Mr. Meyer (and Mr. Kremer) to cease their cheap shots.

Finally, to turn to Mr. Meyer's statement about "Mr. James Holliday" and his "budgetary problems as past director of the California Historical Society," I assume that this passing reference to my career at that institution is designed to suggest some evil act or some failure on my part and thereby to reflect negatively on the Carmel Residents Association.

Here are the facts. I served during two different contractual terms as executive director of the statewide California Historical Society, for a total of ten years, first from 1971 to 1978 (after having served on the board of trustees). During those years of my leadership, the society achieved its greatest success in terms of national acclaim, expansion of membership, number of publications and traveling exhibits, etc. When I resigned in 1978 to have time for other work, I was honored by the board of trustees by being elected Fellow of the Society. And in 1982

I was recipient of the society's most prestigious award, The Henry R. Wagner Medal.

In 1983 I was asked by the board of trustees to return as executive director, and I served once again my full contractual term of office, retiring in 1985. At the time of my retirement, the board held a dinner in my honor, at which it was announced that The J. S. Holliday Annual Award had been created. That award has been given each year since.

Further, I was honored by the society by being named executive director emeritus, a title listed in each issue of the Society's publication California History.

Possibly Mr. Meyer will be able to suggest how this record relates to the tawdry implication in his May 14 letter.

I write this letter as a member of the Carmel Residents Association but in no way as a spokesperson for the membership or the board of directors.

Letters to the editor are welcome. Views on all matters are acceptable, following the guidelines of good taste. Letters must not exceed 250 words in length. Letters are subject to editing for style and length. Each letter must contain name, address, telephone number and signature, and preferably be typed and double spaced. ### Unduly suspicious?

Dear Editor:

Am I being unduly suspicious, or is the Voice of Carmel, Citizens for Good Government at it again?

It appears that the entire city council is in favor of having a consultant; why are they trying to throw a monkey wrench in the machinery?

We all want Peace and Harmony, and I, for one, am willing to take a chance on an unbiased city planner to take a look at the situation and resolve it once and for all without wasting any more of anybody's time.

Holliday responds

Dear Editor:

I write to provide factual response to the ongoing lambasting of the Carmel Residents Association. That there has been no such response from the CRA Board of Directors is because that leadership group has sought to avoid further dispute and contention. I understand and respect that disciplined judgment.

However, several of those attacks on the CRA have been directed against me personally, challenging my word (as did Mr. Kremer, May 7) and my professional career (as did Mr. Meyer May 14). I will not allow those two letter writers' misleading, even untruthful, public statements to go unanswered.

In his letter published in your newspaper May 7, Mr. Donald Kremer speaks of an "attack" on him in the April issue of The Village Watch. He writes: "The article goes on to say that [Holliday] had not heard from me regarding an offer to respond to the Village Watch attack." Mr. Kremer follows with this statement: "Mr. Holliday has never made such an offer to me."

The absolute and witnessed fact is that I did make such an explicit offer to Mr. Kremer. On Monday morning April 13, the day before the election, I was standing in front of the post office with other friends and supporters of Barbara Livingston and when I saw Mr. Kremer, I went up to him and I said: "Hello. How are you?" He replied: "I was OK until I read that trash sheet of yours." I responded: "Mr. Kremer, if there is anything incorrect in our newspaper, please tell me what it is." Mr. Kremer replied: "I don't want to talk about it." He turned away. I confronted him and said: "If there is anything incorrect in that article, please let me know." He looked me square in the eye and with careful deliberateness stated: "Don't worry. You will be hearing from me."

Neither I nor anyone else at the CRA has heard one word from Mr. Kremer as to what was incorrect about that article in The Village Watch. Furthermore, it is equally important and revelatory to emphasize that in his May 7 letter (as in the other letters criticizing The Village Watch and myself as its editor), neither Mr. Kremer nor anyone else has offered a single word of rebuttal or correction to any statement in our newspaper! We await and will publish any such corrections.

Next, in regard to Mr. R. K. Meyer's letter published in your May 14 issue. You chose to title that letter "CRA Shenanigans." That word "shenanigans" is your editorial choice, selected so as to endorse the contents and purpose of Mr. Meyer's personal opinions. This is yet another

City council searching for Pescadero options

By PAUL WOLF

THE CARMEL City Council is keeping as many doors open as possible in its efforts to preserve the Carmel portion of Pescadero Canyon.

"I think the more options we look at the better chance we will have of saving the canyon," said Councilwoman Barbara Brooks, summarizing in a nutshell the council majority's June 2 decision. (Members voted 4 to 1, with Councilman Phil Coniglio dissenting.)

The key options the council wants to continue considering are:

- Finding funds to buy lots, since the city would not likely further its own debts through land purchases.
- Tightening and shifting current zoning to significantly limit possible developments.
- Continue the city's efforts at swapping land with the owners of environmentally sensitive parcels.

Coniglio, while favoring acquisition or land exchange plans, did not favor concocting new zoning rules that could shortchange the property owners.

"This thing is getting old," Coniglio said, referring to the year-and-a-half that one particular development has been put on hold. "Either we purchase the private property or we do an exchange.

With its pristine stands of Monterey pines and rich wetlands, the canyon originates roughly at Highway 1 and Holman Highway. It follows the southern flank of Highway 68, and stretches to Carmel Gate near San Antonio Avenue.

The properties in question, six parcels within the Carmel City limits, are on the north side of Second Avenue. The lots range greatly in size, from 3,500- to 23,904-square feet.

Two lots have homes on them. One lot, the smallest one, is owned by the California-American Water Co. Three lots are vacant, each potentially the site of a new home.

In fact, a proposed home on the largest lot has already received planning commission approvals, which are now being contested in an appeal by the Carmel-based Friends of Pescadero Canyon. The property owner is Tescher/Levett Investments, Inc.

Council debates using outside consultant to resolve zoning

By PAUL WOLF

TO COUNCILWOMAN Barbara Brooks, it appeared to be an idea that has become a bona fide controversy.

One way or another, the sentiment at a city council meeting and public hearing June 2 was that the councilwoman's idea of hiring an out-of-town consultant to solve Carmel's downtown zoning dilemmas should be reconsidered.

The council, at a May 16 retreat, had supported the idea of paying up to $10,000 for a consultant to resolve thorny zoning issues. Although the item was among dozens of goals and priorities discussed and documented, the idea began to take on a life of its own.

The Weekly Sun in Carmel Valley published a front-page article on it, and a Carmel Pine Cone editorial took Brooks to task. "It became a fait accompli in the media," Brooks told her council colleagues. "I was merely describing a group (a New York-based consulting firm cited in the Sun) I wasn't choosing a group."

She described her reasoning for suggesting an outside consultant: "It is apparent that there is no community consensus on the question of where the zoning lines should be drawn. The person from the outside would not be tied to local controversies and could be objective. They would be looking at much more than zoning. They would be looking at parking, economic viability and residential values."

The idea was met with criticism at the public hearing.

"I think it's crazy — what do we need someone from Greenwich Village telling us what to do about Carmel," said Marion Leidig, during a public comment portion.

And Barney Lalolo: "We have plenty of people in this city who can contribute good ideas and help find a solution."

It was Brooks who called the item up for discussion, and the council staged an impromptu public hearing. It will continue taking public comment at its July 7 meeting.

Touched a nerve

Whether or not the idea was just an idea, it still touched a nerve: Who knows Carmel better than those who love it and live in it? That was the touchy question.

"I don't think we should shut off public comment on something as important as this," said Mayor Ken White, holding his own opinions about the idea itself.

Bob Fischer, on the other hand, said the outside consultant "seemed like a progressive idea" at the Saturday retreat, "but I feel strongly this is why we are up

With parents help, CUSD program can keep kids sober

By SCOTT BREARTON

IN A program just launched by the Carmel school system, parents have begun "pledging" the responsibility of ensuring that parties on their property will be drug- and alcohol-free.

The Carmel Unified School District, in conjunction with the Monterey County Sheriff's Department, unveiled the innovative "Safe Homes" program, which had its kick-off May 1 at the Carmel Youth Center.

The purpose of the program, for starters, is to create a network of parents who agree to stage and supervise parties in which alcohol is not served. Their commitment is solidified in the form of a "Parent Pledge."

At the heart of this network is a confidential directory, facilitating communication and unified support for the goals of the program.

"We need support as parents," said parent Susan Lamb. "Kay (Kay Anderson, Carmel Middle School teacher) tells me that many students won't go to parties unless there will be alcohol."

The statistics present a troubling picture.

Statistics tell

According to Janell Malek, drug and alcohol prevention coordinator for the CUSD, 41 percent of 11th-graders surveyed at Carmel High said they drank beer at least once a week. Forty-nine percent said they had smoked marijuana at least once in the last six months.

And the relationship between substance abuse and criminal activity is evident.

"Seventy percent of our inmates started a life of crime by using drugs," said Sheriff Norman Hicks, who spoke at the forum.

By way of background, he noted that the sheriff's department — which is working in cooperation with the district — will be stepping up enforcement efforts in an attempt to curb alcohol and drug-related accidents in the county.

Moreover, curfew laws will be strictly enforced, and liquor stores within the county will be asked to comply with laws pertaining to the sale of alcohol to minors.

CUSD Superintendent Vance Baldwin stressed prevention as well as intervention, and called for the cooperation among the county, schools, and parents.

"We have the choir. Where is the rest of the congregation?" asked district board member Frank Pinney, referring to the low turnout at the forum. There were very few students in attendance.

Malek explained that the key is to detect the warning signs and to begin educating as early as possible.

She said the district will step up education during the 1992-93 school year. In grades K-8, students will be taught such subjects as decision-making and refusal skills. Also, the district will increase counseling services and offer teenagers "positive alternatives" to parties with drugs and alcohol.

Call 624-1546

"Safe Homes" is modeled after a successful program that the Aptos school district adopted eight years ago following a rash of alcohol and drug-related accidents there.

For more information on Carmel's fledgling program, call the district at 624-1546.

"If enough of us take a stand, we can get this thing going," said parent Ron Myer.

U.S. Open ticket information

SEASON TICKETS to the U.S. Open Championship are sold out, reported Karen A. Hunter, championship director. Practice tickets are still available at $30.00 per person. Call 626-1992 to reserve.

Hunter offered a tip:

Wednesday is a good choice because the entire field will be playing. Practice rounds start June 15, with Championship play beginning June 18 and concluding June 21. In case of a tie at the end of 72 holes, an 18-hole playoff will be conducted Monday, June 22.

The pros can thank RJ

Pebble Beach National Pro-Am or State Amateur Tournaments have to use the trunk of their car or their hotel room as their locker. Harper wanted to change that custom for this tournament, to provide the same amenities to U.S. Open players they've experienced at clubs like Medina or Hazeltine. He has accomplished his goal with the support of Vice President of Golf Paul Spengler and the know-how of U.S. Open Facilities Manager Frank Bussey. U.S. Open Championship golfers will be able to relax with their families in quiet, tastefully decorated lounges, gaze out at the driving range, new practice green and bunker from behind white lattice railings, enjoy breakfast and lunch buffets under a 40 x 40 foot tent, have a massage, the use of a fitness center and store their cleats in solid oak lockers.

The contestant village, as Harper calls it, is located on the Pebble Beach polo field, adjacent to the driving range. Players can take a respite there from the rigors of playing Pebble without having to run back and forth between their cars and the course.

Solid Oak Lockers

Harper didn't want the golf lockers in the U.S. Open clubhouse to look like junior high rejects. After much research he discovered Ft. Washington Country Club in Fresno was replacing their antiquated lockers with custom solid oak ones and he asked if they would consider renting the new lockers to the U.S. Open before they were installed in Fresno.

"We invited the Ft. Washington Country Club Board here and told them our plan," he said, almost bursting with excitement. "They'll rent the lockers to us for the championship and in return we'll mount brass plaques on them that say "U.S. Open Championship - Pebble Beach, 1992" and the player's name. When the lockers are returned to Fresno the club will have a fund raiser and auction off the lockers to the membership. Just think, someone will own the locker Jack Nicklaus used at the U.S. Open. What inspiration!"

Legacy of Golf

Harper's first visit to the Pebble Beach Golf Shop was a let down. "Thousands of people every year make the pilgrimage to Pebble Beach to see the pro shop and up until now, I think they've been a little disappointed. I was," Harper said. "I remember the first time I walked into the shop. I expected something much different, more tradition, more history."

There was nothing to distinguish the Pebble Beach pro shop from any of the other 700 plus golf shops in California.

Pebble Beach Company owners asked Harper to come up with a wish list and his number one item was a remodel, something he had dreamed about for years.

"I think when golfers come here they expect to see the tradition of the game, the legacy of Pebble Beach," he said. "The new golf shop will give them a sense of that."

The owners opted for a rich, clubby style much like the Tap Room at The Lodge. The shop will debut for the U.S. Open in dark green leather appointments, with over 200 photographs including many from the collection of former Pebble Beach photographer William C. Brooks lining the walls. Photographs that record the history of golf at Pebble, from the Men's Amateur of 1929 to the first Crosby Tournament in 1947 to photos of former Carmel Mayor Clint Eastwood as a young, sideburned duffer.

Now, when golfers visit this secular shrine to golf they'll find the myth and legend they expect in the Pebble Beach Golf Shop.

Watanabe named Lone Cypress executive vice president at PB

Saji was to remain at Pebble Beach for six to eight months before moving on to new duties and another team would come in to remain on-site and direct day-to-day operations. "At times, Saji will move to reinvolve himself as well as to be oversight for PB from the bank," said Ingram. Saji will be in a similar role as Takabayashi, remaining part of the decision making structure but not present in the on-going operation.

Ingram explained that because the Japanese culture operates in a polite, courteous fashion, "Saji doesn't want to say Watanabe is taking over, because it would be an offense to Saji" and "Watanabe would not want you to think that he's the head honcho because it would be an offense to Saji."

The difficulty appears to be alleviated by naming Watanabe the executive vice president. Formerly Senior Executive Director of Visa Japan Association, an affiliate of Sumitomo Credit Services, Watanabe will join the advisory group from Sumitomo Bank in working with the Pebble Beach Co. management. Previously, Watanabe served as Vice President, Joint General Manager and Managing Director for Sumitomo Bank during various assignments in California, Japan and Australia. He worked for Sumitomo from 1963 to 1988.

In accordance with Japan's management team concept, Noda and Yoshioka are expected to move with Saji. Other new names that appeared in the U.S. Open media pairings, Masao Furuki and a Mr. Kawashima are expected to take the places of Noda and Yoshioka. Because Watanabe announced that he will reside in the Pebble Beach area with his family, another change in management teams is not expected in the near future.

Tourism may be on upswing tourist spending). Monterey Bay Aquarium (marketing department) has done the best study (which says 1991 average expenditures by overnight visitor parties totaled $420).

Jepson said CBA mailings to Carmel's primary tourist target sites (San Francisco, Los Angeles, New York, Dallas and Chicago) now note Carmel cultural events with increased intensity.

'Big push'

"It's a big push," she added, "and one reason we think visitors will be staying longer. Last year, city council gave us $17,500 to promote tourism. This time we're requesting $38,000 plus 50,000 brochures which they've got in hand already. When the matter comes before them (probably in September), we hope they'll see (the allocation) as an investment in the future."

The 1992 season couldn't ask for a stronger kick-off event. To be televised worldwide, the U.S. Open "will have a tremendous effect for many months after," said Mark Verbonich, Pebble Beach Company's vice-president for community affairs, who also is current president of Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce.

Asked to estimate the tourney's financial impact on this area, Verbonich agreed that it will bring "many millions of dollars. But it's really impossible to quantify that way. I'd look at the long term. People all over the world will be seeing the local beauty. There's no better way to promote tourism."

Even more

U.S. Open ticket sales reached 145,000, a near-sell-out. Championship Director Karen Hunter said the event also would draw an additional 3,000-5,000 persons per day — "officials, players and their families, volunteers, media representatives."

Sue Threshie, spokesperson for Monterey Bay Aquarium, said the aquarium drew 1.78 million visitors last year. The annual average since the place opened in 1984 was given as 1.75 million.

"At this moment," she said, "we're down slightly from 1991. It's certainly not a significant drop. We expect to pick up this summer and at least hit our average."

Aquarium marketing coordinator Dawn Byram gave results of visitor exit studies. They said 32 percent of the visitors there also visited Carmel in both 1990 and 1991.

Exactly 88 percent (1991) and 85 percent (1990) dined in area restaurants. And 74 percent (1991) and 71 percent (1990) shopped in area stores.

"This year," Byram said, "we began asking visitors where they stay while they're here. The city-by-city breakdown will be available at the end of 1992."

Why significant?

Elsewhere, vice-president Dale Hess of San Francisco Visitors Bureau said that city had 2.86 million "overnight hotel guests" last year — up 60,000 from 1990. The total was significant locally because, he said, a "predictable 18 percent of our overnight guests (or 514,800 last year) make side trips to the Monterey Peninsula. We really don't know how long they stay down your way."

Would he forecast the 1992 tourist season?

"I've never made predictions," Hess replied — "not in my 20 years on this job. We have high hopes that the overnight guest total will stay the same (as last year), and maybe even gain a little bit. It depends on whether people use the new and lower air fares, and whether they perceive through the media that the economy is gaining strength."

Carmel, he went on, "is as attractive as ever with new properties — Spanish Bay, some inns. That area has a strong drive-in business. You might even gain some tourists. We have lots of conventions in the fall — and, after attending those, people will drive down. Carmel remains a real attraction. Good visibility."

galleries and tee-shirt shops at least occasionally, it is also so that tourists buy clothes and groceries in great abundance on their vacations.

Sales tax is about 23 percent of the city's budget. Earlier this year, a sharp dip in that source of income was cause for alarm. The question arose as to whether the drop was an indicator of waning tourism.

Davenport formed at least one conclusion: "The hostelry tax has never shown the fluctuation that the sales tax has, which may show us that people are still staying in Carmel but not spending as much."

• City finances also rely on the mistakes of visitors. Six percent of the budget derives from traffic and parking citations, and a good chunk of that comes from erring visitors. Neither city hall nor the police department could say exactly how big that chunk is.

Bonfire blight

Dear Editor:

I am a daily walker on Carmel Beach. One of Carmel's principal heritages is the white sand down there. Without thought it is being defaced by the bonfires and resultant charcoal. If this goes on during our coming summer with the number of our expected visitors, the beach will be totally scarred — leaving a mess of charcoal, bottles and cans.

The bottles and cans are carried away regularly, but what about the charcoal

I see new signs up "No fires north of Tenth Street." Do strangers know where Tenth Street is once they are on the beach?

Pescadero Canyon options

Last month's meeting

When discussing the appeal at last month's council meeting, members decided a thorough study of options for preserving the entire Carmel portion of the canyon was imperative.

Then, at the Tuesday afternoon meeting, Planning Director Diane White presented seven detailed options. And the council voted not to shut the door to any of them offering any promise.

During the public hearing, the range of voices were heard. Kermit Dorius, who hopes one day to build his dream house his now-vacant 21,121-square-foot lot, told the council existing regulations and procedures do enough to limit the scale of development. "Development," he said, "can be sensitively controlled."

On the other side of the spectrum, Noel Mapstead, who is leading the Friends of Pescadero Canyon's appeal, argued that the development of new homes can be blocked without compensating the property owners.

Specter of lawsuits

The sentiment among council members and city staff, however, was that excessive restrictions imposed by excessive zoning restrictions would leave the city open to lawsuits.

"The treatment of the property owners has got to be fair and equitable," said Mayor Ken White.

One option the council discussed but didn't support was rezoning the six parcels to "P-1," or park district. Such an action that would effectively prevent the three possible new homes.

Asked where such a change would leave the property owners, City Atty. Don Freeman drew some chuckles when he answered, "There may be something they can build that would serve their needs and the needs of the park district...but what that would be I don't know."

Council members, while urgently hoping to preserve the canyon, have gone on record as not favoring further its bond-indebtedness. Yet they also agreed there may be fund-raising avenues as yet not explored, especially if the Big Sur Land Trust were to come to the city's assistance.

One option that appears now to be counted out is the city's abandoning Second Avenue. That plan would allow the city right-of-way to be used for building sites, so that the steep portions of canyon could be preserved in their pristine state.

The idea was not well-received by council members and by a few residents who spoke at the hearing. They worried about such a scheme eliminating fire and police access to a number of homes.

Land swap option

Council members were not eager to stop talks, now in progress, for a land swap between the city and property owners. Of particular interest are negotiations between the city and Tescher-Levett, in which as many as seven city-owned lots are candidates for a potential exchange.

Not only were council members exploring a variety of options, they were studying combinations of options. For example, the council could pursue a property exchange, and at the same time formulate a Specific Plan, which would include tailor-made zoning rules for the handful of lots in question.

Speaking from her staff perspective, White described such an approach as "having real potential," perhaps going the furthest toward the goals of preservation and treating property owners equitably.

Hyatt representatives meet with Lone Cypress Co.

Oliver and Rich Hamilton, Oliver's special assistant. Headquartered in Chicago, the Pritzker family owns the Hyatt Hotels Corp. which manages the Monterey hotel in addition to over 215 hotels and 56 resorts worldwide.

"We've always wanted to acquire Old Del Monte, it would be perfect for our entire package," said Mike Cassidy, general manager of the Hyatt. "Our interests lie in that direction and the new owners are open to discussion. We have an interest in the property, there's no question about that."

In a follow up discussion, Carrie Reckert, director of public relations for the Hyatt Hotels Corp. in Chicago, claimed that Cassidy "didn't recall" making that statement and emphasized that the meetings with the Lone Cypress Co. were routine, landlord-tenant meetings to discuss land leases.

"Neither we nor the Pritzkers are interested in purchasing the golf course," Reckert said. "We meet with owners all the time. They may be interested in selling, I don't know what was discussed at the meeting, but we are not interested in purchasing (Old Del Monte Golf Course)."

According to a spokesman at the Monterey Hyatt Regency, the hotel began as the Mark Thomas Inn, became the Del Monte Hyatt in the late '60s, was remodeled to become the Hyatt Monterey in 1974, and became a convention center and Hyatt Regency in the early '80s. With 579 rooms, the Hyatt's average occupancy dropped to 60 percent last year, but a 76 percent occupancy is forecast for this year. The hotel's main business is convention groups, and 55 percent of the guests play golf, mostly at the adjacent Old Del Monte golf course.

One local real estate agent estimated that "no hotel in the area is as profitable as the Hyatt — there's no doubt about it." The accommodations and service, experienced sales force and proximity to the golf course are cited as reasons for the success.

Reasons for selling

Speculation about the motives for selling the land the hotel sits on and the golf course — if not the entire Pebble Beach holdings — includes the cost of servicing the debt and the relationship with the lender, Sumitomo Bank.

"Eventually the lenders would expect to sell or bring in investors to reduce the principal amount of the loan," said an international banker in San Francisco who negotiated to buy Pebble Beach in 1986. "The income doesn't even come close to servicing the debt. The cash flow at best is $20 million, and at current interest rates that supports $250 million. So the balance of the $500 million (estimated purchase price) isn't being serviced."

Japanese banks — Pebble Beach is financed by Sumitomo Bank, which according to a 1989 Forbes's magazine report is the world's third largest bank as measured by assets — grabbed a large share of international banking business in the 1980s' helping to finance many leveraged buyouts and real estate empires like Olympia & York, one of the world's largest property companies now tottering on the verge of bankruptcy.

These banks are now burdened with billions of dollars worth of bad loans. Along with the bursting of the rest of the world's speculative bubble, Japanese banks are hard hit.

Itoman & Co.

Japanese bankruptcies are at record levels and a series of scandals forced the heads of five of the largest banks to resign in the past year. Sumitomo Bank Chairman Ichiro Isoda quit in 1990 over illegally diverting deposits to a stock manipulator. According to the New York Times, Itoman & Co., an Osaka trading company that originally put up the notes for Isutani to buy Pebble Beach and has lost hundreds of millions in shady art and stock deals, currently owes Sumitomo $11 billion dollars.

Analysts expect bad loan losses to rise — some estimates run as high as $200 billion worth of bad loans — which may force banks like Sumitomo to reevaluate its business strategies.

"Sumitomo is probably restructuring so they don't have bad loans like banks do in this country," said Harry Hartnett, head of research for Kenneth Leventhal Co., an accounting firm in L.A. that specializes in Japanese real estate investments. "They have closer working relationships with clients than our banks do. This (buying Pebble Beach) might be just another incidence of trying to help a long time client (Itoman) get their finances in order."

Pebble Beach expenses are heavy. At meetings with The Pine Cone in February, Secretary-Treasurer Leach said that the new owners would invest "several million dollars" to upgrade Pebble Beach golf courses and renovate the Inn and Lodge. Recently, major restorations have been made to improve the Pebble Beach course for the upcoming U.S. Open.

Up to several hundred thousand dollars were spent on public relations firms to ensure acceptance of the new owners by the local community and plans for revising the Del Monte Forest land use plan are another expense. Additionally, Margo Nottenkamper, assistant project planner for the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, confirmed that Pebble Beach has spent "well over $1 million" for the development of the water reclamation project that will provide reclaimed waste water for the golf courses and free up water for the development of an additional 353 lots to be sold on Pebble Beach land. Evidence suggests that the current owners are under a terrific financial burden.

But Leach denies that business is off or that discussions with Pritzker included selling Old Del Monte Golf Course. "Our business is doing fine," he said. "We have brought in additional capital and after strategic discussions, we found nothing that makes us believe that business won't do better. We only had one meeting with Pritzker and that was a short and general get-acquainted meeting."

Florence Josselyn, former Carmel councilwoman, dies

FORMER CARMEL City Councilwoman Florence Josselyn, a retired teacher and charter member of the Carmel Planning Commission, died Friday, May 29, at her home here. She was 94.

Fred Keeble, a neighbor who had served with Josselyn, remembers her as "a great lady."

He said she was outstanding in her efforts on the Carmel City Council.

"I worked with her for several years and always appreciated her unbiased approach without preconceived ideas. She treated each issue on its own merit," said Keeble.

"She'll be very badly missed by us. She was a wonderful original Carmel resident."

Born Sept. 29, 1897, in Gilroy, she was a lifelong resident of the Central Coast and had lived in Carmel for 59 years. She served on the city's council from 1973 to 1976, holding the position of police commissioner.

Josselyn was a founding member of the Carmel Planning Commission, serving from 1947 to 1966, including two terms as chairwoman. Prior to that, she was a member of the Harrison Memorial Library board for six years. She taught school in Carmel from 1923 to 1927, and taught sixth grade at the Seaside School for 17 years, retiring in 1957.

Josselyn was also a member of the Carmel Citizens Committee and the Carmel Republican Women's Club.

Her husband, author Talbert Josselyn, died in 1961, and she is survived by a daughter, Barbara Josselyn Asa of Piedmont, and two grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held at a later date. Private cremation will take place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea, Pacific Grove, under the direction of the Paul Mortuary, and her ashes will be scattered at sea.

The family prefers that memorial contributions be made to the Hospice of the Central Coast, or to the Nature Conservancy of California.

Zoning consultant spurs council-citizen debate

here — to make these decisions."

Fischer said he would rather see the same sum of money go for a general election than to a consultant.

Councilwoman Barbara Livingston, who sees merit in the idea, came to Brooks' defense. "This idea of an outside consultant needs to be explored and investigated. That is all we are asking."

Some confusion

Council members and the ordinary citizens alike are confused about where things stand regarding the proposed downtown zoning changes. The former council agreed to extend the central commercial district to Seventh Avenue, but held off on any decisions about what to do with the other side of Ocean Avenue.

The planning commission has recommended doing away with the experimental service-commercial zone, which is supposed to serve as a special district for resident-serving businesses. The zone is located between the central business district and the hotel-motel zone.

Complex web

The zoning controversy leads to a complex web of issues that are impossible to avoid when trying to redraw lines.

They include, just for starters, the continuing loss of local-serving businesses in Carmel, and whether anything can be done about it; the function of commercial planning through zoning regulations, which some argue compromise free-market principles; and the problem of high rents, and what the city can do about them.

One woman at the public hearing described council members as "the captains of our ship," suggesting that, for better or worse, they should have to make up their own minds about any new zoning policies.

Pine Cone photo of CHS sign prompts community action

By SCOTT BREARTON

SOMETIMES A little publicity can do a world of good.

Brian Steen, executive director of the Big Sur Land Trust was thumbing through last week's issue of The Carmel Pine Cone when he discovered a photo of a sign marking the entrance to Carmel High School campus.

From the photo it is apparent that the sign is showing signs of wear and should be repaired if not replaced.

Steen agreed.

He called his friend Frank Pinney, Carmel Unified School District board member.

CUSD meets quota

ORGANIZERS HAVE announced they have recruited more than the minimum number of volunteers from the Carmel Unified School District to work at the U.S. Open, assuring the CUSD that it will receive $70,000 from the Pebble Beach Company.

According to Lynn Moore a volunteer organizer, the Pebble Beach Company contribution will be used to enhance the instructional programs at Carmel schools.

The district needed to recruit a minimum of 425 volunteers to remain eligible for the funds. To date, organizers report they have 460 volunteers, who will be assigned to food and beverage concession stands during the tournament.

"Everybody's excited and committed," Moore said, adding that there are still about 10 positions available on Sunday, June 21, to those who have already signed up for four days and would like to work an additional day.

"I told him that we've got the wood if he had the time," Steen said.

Steen said he wants to deliver two rounds to the school: one for a new sign and another for counting rings. He said the biggest problem is going to be finding a chain saw big enough to cut through the enormous rounds.

Pinney said he would look into recruiting someone from Carmel High to help with the project. He said he had a chainsaw big enough to cut through a round up to six feet across.

"Our goal is to get a new sign up by the end of the school year," Pinney said.

In 1990, the Big Sur Land Trust purchased 1,047 acres of what used to be the Westbrook Land and Timber Company. The land was logged from 1984-86.

Today the property is known as the Arthur and Harriet Mitteldorf Preserve, named for the couple who contributed the funds used to allow the Big Sur Land Trust to buy and preserve this forested property.

"This property contains the largest redwood trees in Monterey County," Steen said. "He said that many of the trees are over 60 inches in diameter."

Since many of the trees have been cut down for nearly eight years, Steen said it makes sense to use the timber before it begins to decompose.

Telephone book recycling drive

DELIVERY OF new Pacific Bell SMART Yellow pages to doorsteps throughout Monterey County signals the start of the annual telephone directory recycling drive, designed to keep more than 200,000 outdated books from area landfills. The recycling drive began May 19 and will continue through June 14.

A flyer placed in the new directories lists nine drop-off locations for old phone books. In Carmel, the drop-off spot is behind Brinton's Department Store in the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center. In Monterey, residents can leave old phone books at Dennis the Menace Park, at the corner of Camino Estero and Pearl streets.

For more information, call the Pacific Bell Recycling Hotline: 1-800-729-0239.

CVVIC duty encouraged

By LESLIE VOSS
Carmel Valley Village Community Improvement Committee Member

GROWING UP in the Los Angeles area does things to a person. I developed a strong desire to get away from it all. The moment I made a commitment to start my own business, I also made the choice to give up stressful city life. The lifestyle of preference became Carmel Valley Village.

The village has come to remind me of a Camelot - a spot where the cooling fog sneaks in after dark and vanishes magically in the early morning. It is a serene place where panoramic views of open spaces are commonplace. It is a warm community of people who have both a sense of privacy and an unspoken promise to "be there" for their neighbor.

Give back

Living in such a rare place - reaping the rewards - caused me to want to find a way to "give back" just a bit of what valley life had given me. After making inquiries, I discovered the Carmel Valley Village Improvement Committee (CVVIC).

This group is comprised of business people and other interested individuals who recognize the precious commodity of Carmel Valley Village life. CVVIC's primary focus is that of maintaining and enhancing the essence of our distinctive village. Although I joined as an outsider not knowing the members, it wasn't long before I became part of the group, and even more connected to the community.

CVVIC's largest undertaking has been the completion of a meandering pathway which now connects Rippling River on the East side to Carmel Valley Community Youth Center on the West. It has been as arduous task of planning, budgeting, negotiating with property owners, fund-raising, and finally the actual paving. Many hundreds of volunteered hours have made it a reality. The payment for this effort is in watching both locals and visitors enjoy that pathway which leads them to the many choice stores and restaurants which enhance our village.

After joining

In the short two years since joining, I have been able to help with CVVIC's part in the annual Village Fiesta, design floats for village parades, and assist in obtaining auction donations for CVVIC's primary yearly fund-raiser, the Village Affair. And now I have been given the honor of chairing a committee to establish a "Welcome Garden" at the entry to the village (a "self-serve used car lot" at present). With careful planning, this

Local artist promotes children's art

By SUSAN BECK

CARMEL VALLEY may become an international art center for children.

That's if William Giles, a valley resident and renowned photographer, has his way.

Giles initiated the Children's Art Faire in 1989 and is the director of the Village Guild, which brings Carmel Valley artists together for mutual projects.

The faire has been held for the past four years in the Village Gallery at 12 Delfino Place in the village where Giles has his studio. Along with the encouragement of Carolyn Tugel, owner of the complex and neighbor Vic Colton of Colton Realty, Giles was able to offer the community a chance to view an extensive display of creative art from the children at Tularcitos Elementary School.

The promoter of children's art shares Henry Miller's philosophy. "It's one thing to have kids do their art in school. It's a whole other thing when their art is supported by the community and displayed as a community project," said Giles.

project will transform a bit of land along the roadside to a delightful spot which appropriately reflects the atmosphere of our village.

Volunteering is giving and receiving. Perhaps this year you will decide to take a more active part in village life - a real chance to join the fun and feel the warmth of contributing to the quality of life in the village. If you love the village and want to make a difference, we welcome you to join CVVIC, or any other non-profit agency which supports the quality of our rural lifestyle. For more information about CVVIC call Peter Coakley, chairman, at 659-2261 or me at 659-3799.

For the first time last year some of the children's art was sent to Alushta, Crimea in the then Soviet Union. This year their work will be going to the Ukraine, Ireland, Ecuador, New Zealand, and Thailand.

Giles has a strong feeling that our culture and that of other countries are headed in for some terrible times. He believes that children are the world's salvation especially through the arts.

"We program the kids into work. By the time kids are 12 they feel the pressure of what are they going to do for money. Their sense of independence is going to be challenged the more fierce money becomes in the future," said Giles.

"If you have a person who can be at home with themselves doing something creative, we will have a much saner society. Art doesn't hurt anyone."

Giles should know.

He grew up in Argentina during the Juan Peron years and left because of the tyranny that Peron's reign inflicted upon the country.

Giles' father was at one time the only American physician in Argentina, and his mother was a concert pianist.

Lasting insight

They both taught him life-lasting insights.

When Giles was 3 years old his father took his toys and x-rayed them. Giles was delighted. His father said, "If you really look at something, you can see through it."

His mother, perhaps to quiet the active child, would tell Giles to "listen to the notes between the notes."

In pursuit of the not so obvious in life, Giles became a significant photographer on the West Coast. He studied with Minor White, Ansel Adams, and Dorothea Lange.

He participated in putting together the first issues of Aperture magazine, published his first portfolio "Communism" in 1959, headed the photographic department at Rochester Institute of Photography, and created the "Cretan" portfolio in 1969 after teaching extended workshops in Crete and Mexico.

His "Mother of Pearl" work was completed in 1975, and one of his most recognized works is "Calla Lilly."

At present, Giles is working on yet another photographic book, and taking a change of direction by experimenting with images created by a moving camera.

"Once you've established yourself in an area, your promoters don't like it very much if you change. They want you to continue doing the same thing," said Giles.

He doesn't like to be boxed in.

WILLIAM GILES

"The American culture is not going in the right direction. Our system is becoming a 'story board' culture, and is developing a racist economy. Democracy is a grouping of individuals, but it would be so easy to be a country of sheep. The arts are the antidote to regimentation," said Giles.

"We don't trust joy much. Joy and pleasure are always a little bit suspect. We are still a somewhat puritan society, which dictates that work is very heavy and serious."

"If you get children early enough to develop inside out through art, a natural expression of inner feelings, they can clarify how they feel and stand on their own feet, which will carry over into other areas," said Giles.

Encourages participation

The Village Gallery has exhibited 14 different local artists, and is open to any children's exhibit. Giles encourages teachers who are interested in volunteering to participate and teach art classes. The next Village Guild meeting will be held on Wednesday, June 17 at the gallery starting at 7:30 p.m.

"It is an absolute joy to see the kids talking among themselves about their work, or when they bring their grandparents in to see what they have done," said Giles.

He believes that through art there is a self-improving orientation. He recalled what his father once told him, "Don't consider it work, consider it serious play."

Learn the joy of reading this summer

SAIL INTO the unknown with the 1992 Summer Reading Program sponsored by the Monterey County Free Libraries.

The annual county-wide program is designed to encourage children to enjoy reading year-round and to make them aware of the treasures available at their local public libraries.

This year's summer program will begin in mid-June and continue for seven weeks. Children of all ages may register as participants at any of the 16 branches, bookmobiles, and Books-by-Mail programs.

Participants will receive a reading book log and stickers for books they read during the summer. They will also have drawing, coloring, and word-game activities. A certificate of achievement will be presented to each reader at the program's completion.

Along with the summer reading, many library branches schedule special programs throughout the summer for all age groups.

Monterey County Free Libraries branches are located in the communities of Carmel Valley, Big Sur, Seaside, Marina, Aromas, Bradley, Castroville, Gonzales, Greenfield, King City, Pajaro, Parkfield, Prunedale, San Ardo, San Lucas, and Soledad.

CHAPS welcomes supporters in CV

AN OPEN house for members of the California Horse Adoption Protection Society (CHAPS) was held Saturday, May 30, at the Trail and Saddle Club in Carmel Valley.

Founding members Debbie Tiernan, Sharon Johnston, and Bonnie Stoehn were on hand to greet all of those who came to get a look at the horses and donkeys they have helped to save.

The society was formed to rescue animals from inhumane treatment in the process of being transported for slaughter.

"We are all pleasantly surprised and overwhelmed with the interest in our concern," said Stoehn who is responsible for traveling around the county to take care of animals that are in temporary locations.

The main goal of CHAPS now is to find a permanent place to keep the rescued animals.

For more information about the organization write to CHAPS, P. O. Box 982, Carmel, 93921, or call 425-5209.

BEAU IS three years old. He was considered "too friendly" to use for roping and therefore destined for slaughter. He was bought by CHAPS coordinator, Bonnie Stoehn, and is a great joy to everyone. ## Carmel Valley resident offers new method to healing

PATRICIA L. Mann, R.N., M.S. of Carmel Valley is offering a healing workshop Saturday, June 6, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

She will present the use of "Toning" or "sounding" as a transformational tool for healing and achieving greater levels of awareness.

Sound has long been utilized by nearly every culture and society to alter mood shift energy, and to heal the human mind, body, and spirit.

"Toning" or Tonal Therapy is done through the human voice. It sets up a particular resonance in the body and subtle energy fields helping to harmonize energies and transform consciousness.

Experiment with sound will be done in a safe and relaxed environment. Participants will experience tones made specifically for the group and for individuals as needed, and they will be given the opportunity to begin making their own healing sounds if they desire.

If you have ever been fascinated by sound or are interested in awakening, healing, and transforming your consciousness, this workshop will be of great value.

For Vernie, with love

So many people in Carmel and Monterey knew my friend, Vernon Haas, that I wanted to share some thoughts about his recent passing.

Vernon was a special man — loving, kind and gentle. He adored his wife, Jane, his family, his friends, and his beloved pets. Dandy and Nellie were adopted from the DDPF and they were Vernon's best friends. Although he and Jane loved to take weekend trips, they found that car rides weren't comfortable for their doggies. So what did Vernon do? He bought a motor home so his family could travel in style! There was nothing he wouldn't do for those he loved, and that's what I loved about him.

How I miss my friend, Vernie...

More about fleas

During the warm summer months, many pet owners notice little black specks, like pepper, on their pet's fur. In most cases, it's a sure sign that fleas have taken up residence on your dog or kitty-cat. To be certain the problem is fleas, sprinkle a few drops of water on the specks. If they turn red you know that fleas have been terrorizing your pet. Flea dirt is actually flea excrement, and it turns red because fleas feed on your pet's blood.

Fleas can be devastating, especially to very young or older animals. Not only are they painful and irritating, they also cause diseases like anemia, tapeworm and allergic dermatitis.

As I mentioned last week, it's important to regularly treat your pet, your home and your yard. For your dog or cat, flea combs are a terrific grooming aid. They have very close tines that capture and hold the fleas. Before grooming, put some warm water in a bucket and add just a few drops of liquid soap. After each stroke with the flea comb, dip it into the bucket to release the fleas. The soapy water will kill them.

After shampooing your pet, sprinkle some citrus oil (available at health food stores) on him and rub it in. Fleas are repelled by the scent, but your pet will smell and feel great! You can also make your own natural flea repellent spray by mixing some oils from the health food store. Try 1/2 bottle each of pennyroyal, citrus and eucalyptus oils, mixed with an equal amount of water in a spray bottle. Mist your pet every other day.

Vacuum floors and carpeting frequently and put a flea collar in the vacuum bag to kill the fleas. Isn't that better than putting a flea collar on your dog or cat?

Any pet who spends time outside will most likely have fleas now and then, but you can keep them from becoming a problem with a little care. Believe me, it's worth the effort.

See you next week!

Those romantic strawberries

IT IS that time of year again when the summer's warm weather brings reminiscences of picnics and BBQs with strawberry shortcake and strawberry ice cream or sipping those decadent strawberry daiquiris and dunking those stemmed berries in cream and brown sugar, that is if you are out of the fog zone. And those special occasions with champagne and long stem berries that you share with your partner.

The origin of the name strawberry or fraise (French) is a mystery. Some claim it comes from the French explorer Antoine Amedee Frezier who in 1712 brought back to Europe some plants from Chile that were the size of walnuts. However, others sources say the name was just a coincidence, because the berry was already being cultivated in Europe in the 13th century. The plant has actually been traced to prehistoric times.

May and June are the peak months of the season, but today we can get them most of the year. We are also fortunate to be so close to the abundant Watsonville strawberries, where you can pick your own on some farms. Strawberries are a very good source of vitamin C providing they are fresh. The frozen form loses about 50 percent. Ten berries equal about 37 calories, good for any summer slimming and during medieval times they were considered a cure for just about everything.

When preparing berries it is best as with most fruits and vegetables to consume them as soon after they are picked or bought. When washing them keep the hull on so that water does not fill up the cavity, that is if they are being served whole. Ideally, wash them just before serving. However I have a very good friend that washes, hulls and quarters them and puts them in a plastic container with the lid not completely sealed and they seem to hold up quite well for a couple of days. Generally, the smaller berries tend to be more flavorful.

Strawberry daiquiri

In a blender combine 2 ounces of light rum, 1/2 ounce of Cointreau or triple sec, 6 very ripe strawberries, 1 ounce of lime juice, 1/2 teaspoon of superfine sugar and 1 cup of crushed ice and blend well. I like to serve them in a large wine glass with the rim dipped in sugar and garnished with a strawberry wedged on the rim of the glass.

Long-stemmed strawberries

I cut a little off of the stem to give it a fresh looking stem and then serve them with sour cream or creme fraiche, dark brown sugar and sometimes some chopped crystallized ginger. Also, the dipped berries in dark chocolate and or white chocolate (melted in a double boiler) then dipped in chopped nuts such as pistachios are wonderfully sinful.

Strawberry shortcake

(Serves 12) 1-1/2 to 2 pounds of strawberries quartered and sugared to taste and sprinkled with a little Cointreau or Chambord and just before serving add about 2 cups of raspberry puree or strawberry coulis (this gives the natural juice a thicker texture).

For the biscuits sift together 4 cups of flour, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 5 teaspoons baking powder. Then cut in 10 oz unsalted butter (to cut the butter into the flour mixture I put it in my food processor and pulse it a couple of times. I do it in a couple of batches because the quantity is too large to do it all in one batch.) Then I put the dough mixture into a cake mixer with the paddle attachment and slowly add about 1-1/4 cups of cream or just enough for the dough to hold together and not stick to the sides of the bowl. Then I roll the dough on a floured surface about 1/2 inch thick and cut with a large glass or round cutters, brushing off any excess flour.

Next, brush the tops with a little melted butter, milk or eggwash and sprinkle with a little sugar. Bake in hot preheated oven about 425 degrees for about 10 to 15 minutes or until golden brown (Options: Sometimes I will add some finely chopped orange or lemon rind about a tablespoon, some finely chopped almonds about 1/4 cup and some dark red chopped rose petals about 1/4 cup to the dough before I add the cream). Have about 2 cups of chilled whipping cream beaten not too stiff with a little sugar and vanilla and perhaps some more liqueur. To assemble, slice the shortcake in half horizontally saving the top, spoon the berries over the bottom half and replace the top, put a big dollop of whipped cream. I like to garnish it with some toasted almond slices and maybe some chopped roses. Enjoy!

Strawberry fritters

Hull 6 strawberries per person and make a batter with 1 cup flour, 1/4 teaspoon salt, grated or finely chopped rind of half a lemon, 1 tablespoon of white wine, a pinch of sugar, 2 egg yolks and enough water to make a creamy consistency. Just before cooking the fritters mix into the batter 1 tablespoon of oil and 2 egg whites stiffly beaten. Spear the strawberries with a fork dip in the batter and cook in clean hot oil 385 degrees F. Cook about six at a time and serve as soon as you can. Dust with a little powdered sugar and for a few extra calories offer a little whipped cream.

To end with an old ode, a bit sexist perhaps, oh well:

Wife into a garden and set me a plot
With strawberry roots, the best to be got.
Such growing abroad amongst thorns in a wood,
Well chosen and picked prove excellent good.

Life's landmarks

HENRY MEADE WILLIAMS

HENRY MEADE Williams is remembered for his integrity of character and his contribution, as the owner of Wells' Bookshop, to the intellectual and cultural life of Carmel. Wells' is a Carmel landmark in memory only now, but a new, real testimony to Henry Meade Williams exists due to his daughter Lacy Williams Buck and her husband Robert who have established the endowment for the Henry Meade Williams Local History Room through the Frank H. and Eva Buck Foundation. It seems fitting a man of letters, beloved in his community, would give his name to the somewhat hallowed repository for Carmel-By-The-Sea's personal history, located at the Park Branch of Harrison Memorial Library.

His well-documented story, titled "Henry Meade Williams: Carmel's-Dean of Books," can be read in the memorabilia displayed in the Park Branch. The well used pipe and favorite fishing hat, camping journal, portrait of his wife Mona and family photos donated by his children Christopher, Karen and Lacy are behind glass. The essence of the man lives on in the memories of his family and friends.

"He took great pride in the fact he was an 'everyman'," said his son Christopher, gathering his thoughts the night after the dedication ceremony. "His interest in people turned being with people into an art. He was as much at home at a New York literary conference as he was sitting and talking for hours with a fisherman in Maine."

Henry Meade Williams was many things; a writer, publisher, editor, bookstore owner, husband, father. The citizens of Carmel should especially put a value on the example he gave them as a courteous shopkeeper, with a smile and handshake for everyone. His good humor, his unaffected easy knowledge of what was being published and of the varying tastes of his customers gained his shop a reputation as a place hospitable to all friends of good letters. It mirrored in an unpretentious way many of the values, personal and cultural, that Carmel still aspires to protect.

Christopher Williams in retrospect, said, "Raw memories become valuable lessons. You remember incidents, but it's not until later that you put a value on what seemed like insignificant events."

A handshake, a "how do you do," a friendly, courteous face; little things not noticed until they're gone. What happened to good manners? Shopkeepers in some cities now carry guns. Henry Meade Williams knew the value of a smile.

KAFFE FASSETT

Kaffe Fassett's recent visit home was ironic. It began as a scheduled stop on a coast-to-coast tour of knitting workshops and ended up coinciding with memorial services for his father, who died a few days before. No matter his following in Europe, here he was, a man who had come home to mourn and show the folks what he had accomplished in the outside world. He expressed apprehension and disappointment in the reception he had gotten in the U.S.

"People in Europe are interested in life enhancing subjects. They use their hands, work with color," he said. "People here don't relate."

In England he recently aired a six-part television series on knitting. In this country a gray-suited anchor-man had rejected him for an interview saying his work wasn't colorful enough for television, even though some of his creations contain 200 distinct hues. Fassett thinks this country's news media and press are infected with the "what's new?" syndrome.

"If I could announce I just had an affair with someone I would make news, but knitting? Come on. The knitters are out there, the knitting press is not."

Kaffe Fassett is an artist who paints with yarn. In England and Europe he's a celebrity and has been called the "rock star of knitting." He's credited with almost single-handedly raising needlepoint into a modern art form and for bringing new dimensions to color in knitting. His knitted garments and needle point tapestries are collector's items and his clients include Barbra Streisand, Lauren Bacall and Ali McGraw. Kaffe is the first living textile designer to be honored with a one-man exhibition at the Victoria & Albert Museum in London; a show that attracted a record number of visitors.

Like any prodigal son, it was important to him to make a good impression here in his home town, in spite of the fact his nephew Kirk Jafill, manager of Nepenthe and the Phoenix Shop said the reception by the local press had been the most unenthusiastic in the entire country, including Oklahoma.

Kaffe Fassett was born in San Francisco, raised in Big Sur. He grew up on the coast surrounded by a stream of creative people, friends of his parents, the late Bill and Lolly Fassett. The Fassetts founded Nepenthe restaurant and the Phoenix Shop in Big Sur.

His mother wouldn't let Kaffe slide into the prevailing red neck environment as he was growing up. She saw to it he got to town to see the latest theater production or concert. Her influence and the Big Sur coastline inspired him. The colors of the coast seeped into his bones; the stones, ice plant and the intensity of the ocean are what he remembers most. And the light. He won a scholarship to study painting at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston right out of high school and moved to England in 1964.

On the eve of his "fashion and audio visual extravaganza" titled "Glorious Inspirations," Fassett was concerned about the turnout. The event had been moved from the Monterey Plaza to the Hyatt to accommodate the hoped-for large crowd.

"Boy, you're a welcome sight," he said, smiling out at the audience, as he prepared to introduce the first model. Knitters had gotten the word through their own network of local yarn shops, some from as far away as Los Angeles. Some wore vintage Fassett designs. Hoots and hollers from the fashion show audience gave a hint it was not a typical peninsula crowd and at the end of the spectacular show, they rose in a standing ovation, cheering, as Kaffe danced down the ramp holding hands with two little girls.

A sweet homecoming, after all.

TOM & DEBBY HARRIS

Tom and Debby Harris are cut from the same cloth as the cowboy stars of our childhood. Roy Rogers, Gene Autrey and Hopalong Cassidy are near legend now, but the Harris's are for real and they're not on the silver screen, but right here in Carmel Valley.

Ask them and they'll tell you they're just cowboys, not fancy equestrian people, but they're being modest. Show business is their line, cowboy show business.

The Harris' met and married on the rodeo circuit, working for Cotton Rosser's Flying U. Debbie couldn't help but notice the cowboy who would drive a burning chuck wagon around the arena and then jump down between the horses and pull them to a stop. Tommy was impressed when he took Debbie to a western Halloween party and she lit up her outfit with hundreds of lights just like the "Rhinstone Cowboy." Only a larger than life cowboy couple could name their son Cactus Sam and make it stick.

Tom, Debbie and Cactus Sam recently moved their business, Harris Stage Lines, to a western setting, Dorothy McEwen's Holman Ranch in Carmel Valley, after nearly seven years as equestrian directors at Stonepine. Soon they'll be staging shows in the tradition of the old west for special events and corporate functions.

PALLI AND John Cunningham, who were affiliated with the Carmel Art Institute for 52 years, visited with Board member Deborah di Grazia at a reception at Flander's Mansion. (Chris Hulse photo.)

DEBBIE AND Tom Harris, owners of Harris Stage Lines, have announced they're taking their western show across the road to The Holman Ranch in Carmel Valley.

They're a rare breed, the last of the cowboy heroes.

IRONIES & INTRIGUES

Knitters are obsessive. Kaffe Fassett knows a yarn shop that routinely keeps a basket full of heads of lettuce in the store. If a knitter over-buys and needs to camouflage their skeins of yarn to get them past a suspicious spouse the shop keeper, at no extra charge, lays a couple of big green heads on top of the yarn.

Monterey Fairgrounds opens at 5:00 tonight for people who like to do things on impulse and didn't plan ahead. Luckily for them, the show is not sold out.

Carmel's new planning commissioner, Maggie Hardy, said she wouldn't want to see Carmel become a series of strip malls. A shopkeeper in a tucked-away court on the north side of Ocean Ave. reports she gets many buyers from Los Angeles who tell her the same thing. They purposefully avoid what they call the mall-type shops on Ocean and explore the side streets looking for something unique.

By Carol Hemingway

Understanding love

RECENTLY, I walked into Books, Inc. on Ocean Avenue and purchased a copy of Ivana Trump's novel (smile...more like a biography) For Love Alone, and read it over Memorial Day weekend. I couldn't put it down. Its contents are rich, comfortable reading, tasteful, soft, but not too soft. Anyway, it inspired me to write this article.

Why do so many people have difficulty accepting and understanding love? Isn't it supposed to be a healer, help us smooth over the inconsistencies in our lives, warm up freeze-dried feelings, and enable us to see that ultimately it's harmony with oneself and that one special person we love to be the bottom line in life?

In Ivana Trump's chart her Pisces Sun is in Donald's 7th house of marriage and business partnership. This is one of the most constructive aspects for a fulfilling marriage. It shows that the female is capable of nourishing her mate, while his strength ultimately becomes a powerful center and focus in her life.

Quite literally, it shows the marriage between them would be solid and lasting, however, Ivana is a Pisces whose ruler is Neptune (planet of illusion and delusion). She wrapped her life around him like Saran Wrap, since her Venus in Aquarius can be so transparent, it was also in Donald's 7th house, but it was her Sun opposite Saturn and Moon square Saturn that sabotaged their relationship. Her relationship with her father was cold, distant and shallow. It's what her marriage became with Donald.

Donald has Leo Rising with Uranus ruling his Aquarius 7th house cusp and no planets in his 7th; he can survive quite nicely thank you, without a mate. Can you believe that Ivana has Venus in Aquarius exactly conjunct his 7th house (both masculine signs)?

As we know, Aquarius needs freedom. Fragile it is not. Could Ivana's Venus find a more comfortable nest in marriage? Ah...but then Aquarius always has a problem with long-term commitment, that is until T. Saturn now in Aquarius is making them more responsible. More Aquarians are getting married now than ever before and making commitments.

Power struggle

The fly in the honey jar is Ivana's Venus opposite Donald's Pluto in Leo. (Ivana has Venus opposite Pluto in her own natal chart). It doesn't take a rocket scientist to see that Ivana created the power struggles between them, while Donald was simply playing out the script in her natal chart.

Pain is as important to her in a relationship as joy...she's insatiable. No amount of love, affection, or attention from Donald could satisfy her. In short, she wanted to possess his soul, especially since T. Pluto was both square her Venus and opposite his Pluto...the explosions between them were real, indeed. It certainly loosened their closeness, as money became the battlefield on which this soap opera was played.

Irony isn't it? Here we thought that Donald was trying to control Ivana! Again, he was only reading the script she gave him.

I personally believe that "these two" will get back together, in hopes that spiritual growth can happen and with T. Pluto behind them, along with the turmoils and upheavals...and especially now that T. Saturn in Aquarius (Donald's 7th and Ivana's Venus in his 7th), they can put a sense of order and balance back into their lives and let's face it...they introduced us to an element of beauty into their environment.

Neither is over-dependent on the other as Donald has seven masculine signs and Ivana has six. When they fight, they fight like men, as both are strong in their own way.

Role reversal

In the chart of Donald Trump, we find his Venus in Cancer. He's a soft, fuzzy pussycat, but no one knows it except his astrologer (smile). Hopefully Ivana has figured it out. Ivana's Venus in Aquarius has always experienced problems with intimacy; sex is no problem but intimacy is...so here we have role reversal. His Venus is feminine and doesn't play at the game of love, nor does he want to run the risk of being drained of all he has to give just to receive Ivana's attention. She frightened her husband away and very quickly.

Ivana definitely has magnetism, and charisma is a word to describe her impact on the world. With T. Saturn conjunct her Venus this year, can you imagine how isolated she is right now with very few intimates to confide in? Pluto enjoys "the sense of power" and in this case she destroyed her own marriage...compounded by her Venus-Pluto opposition, and Sun-Saturn opposition and Moon-Saturn square...S-A-B-O-T-A-G-E...all because of affection denied by her father in her childhood making her obsessive/compulsive. With such a lethal combination, she may never satisfy her immense demands for love and affection, simply because she never learned to receive love from a man.

Marla's devouring nature

It seems to me that to divorce a man you love simply because his hormones kicked in as in Marla Maples is NOT a reason to discard a neat guy like Donald. By the way, Marla is a Scorpio and has Venus in 18 degrees Scorpio square Donald's 7th house and Ivana's Venus...so as this is written watch for headlines of the Marla/Donald thing to collapse like a house of cards. Marla's devouring nature will be stopped by T. Saturn (her Saturn is in 16 degrees Aquarius) and barely within a degree of Donald's 7th house...and I doubt she's about to accept the responsibility of marriage to such a vital man when she prefers to control (Venus in Scorpio). Marla doesn't fall in love; she takes hostages. Marriage between them would be an unwelcome restriction and Donald doesn't pull well in double harness (Aquarius 7th house). Marla's Venus squares her very own Saturn; she's a cold bitch, about as warm as a witch's tit from Minnesota.

The relationship even though we haven't heard a lot about it is fast crumbling between them, especially between March 11 and 14 (1992) and let's see what happens between July 8th and 11 when T. Mars in Taurus opposes her Venus in Scorpio and squares her Saturn, triggered by T. Saturn in Aquarius square her Venus and conjunct her Saturn, i.e. her first Saturn Return.

With Donald's Venus in 25-degrees Cancer and his Saturn in 23-degrees Cancer (both in his 12th house of hidden romance), I would bet all my money on his future joy and happiness when T. Pluto in Scorpio trines his Venus-Saturn starting in late October 1992...1993...and 1994. This is one very sweet man (trust me, I know) and on top of that, T. Saturn is about to trine his Sun in October, 1992... he couldn't fall flat on his face, even if he tried.

I hate to do this...but I want to leave you all with something to think about...Ivana's last line in her book, which says, "She wondered for an instant what changes the next few years would bring, what pain and what happiness, then pushed the thought away. This was not the time to worry about that. Here, now, surrounded by the people she loved most in the world, for this moment, however brief, she had it all." I rest my case.

In doubt about your relationship? Is it going anywhere in particular? Are you in a rut; want to change it? Call for a relationship consultation, 624-2881 or write: P.O. Box 223825, Carmel, CA 93922. See you all next week!

PINTOS (AGES 7 and 8): Copies By The Sea (CBTS) bat boy Bristol Schmitz was on the job as usual, efficiently retrieving the bats, taking in the action and cheering on his team as it played On The Beach (OTB) on Tuesday May 26. The leading hitters were Adam Canepa (OTB) and Kyle Breuleux (OTB), both of whom doubled, and Luke Perins (CBTS), who brought in three runners with a high fly down center. Other noteworthy hits were a single off the bat of Aron Forbes (OTB) and a hard hit to center by Chelsea Campbell (CBTS).

Nick Pacitto (CBTS) was quick on his feet at first base. Teammates Peter Lee, Kyle Lyons and Chelsea Campbell also wasted no time throwing in from the outfield in the third inning. Andrew Dahl (CBTS) stopped one as rover, throwing to Kevin Dorey for an out. OTB players with fielding fever were Chris Ling, Carl Lostrom and Zach Baysinger.

On Wednesday, May 27 New Masters Gallery (NMG) met Thunderbird for Kids (TFK). NMG power hitters Scott Spaulding, Matt Herbert, Carl Lemos and Patrick White all doubled. Taylor White slugged a double with 2RBI for TFK. Alex Brant (NMG) made a great catch at third base; Dan Ellis fielded admirably for TFK.

For good catching to happen, there has to be good batting. At the RG Burger (RGB) and Pine Inn (PI) game on Thursday, May 28, there were both. RGB kept hitting them farther and higher; PI kept catching them as easily as reeling in kites. "Wow," was the general opinion of spectators.

Kenny Kleinkopf stole the show with his four fly catches and two homeruns for PI. John Puccinelli (PI), Chase Montgomery (RGB), Joe Stoffers (RGB) and Kristen Kitaji (RGB) had their share of good catches. John Puccinelli (PI) and Joshua Jamison (PI) both had double hits. There was strong batting also from Max Rieser, Megan Travaille and Caitlin Travaille for RGB, and Devin Parks for PI.

On Saturday, May 30, Pine Inn (PI) was matched with On The Beach (OTB). Tops at bat were Adam Canepa (OTB) with a triple and a double, Kyle Breuleux (OTB) with a double and Becky Davis (PI) with a double. Strong, consistent hittin was shown by Alex Connel, Rachel McFarland and Joshua Jamison, all from the PI team. Devin Kehl (PI) hustled for an unassisted double play at first. Erick Carl, Chris Ling and Kyle Breuleux all put up a good defense for OTB.

Copies By The Sea (CBTS) and Thunderbird for Kids (TFK) also met on the field Saturday. Leading hitters were Andrew Dahl (CBTS), Nick Pacitto (CBTS) and Mike Oswald (TFK), all of whom produced doubles. Chelsea Campbell, Peter Lee, Kephra Moon, Kirk Danielson, Robert Jensen and Alex Conway of CBTS also contributed strong hits.

For CBTS Cardiff Schmitz made some outstanding catches, including a fly ball that was then thrown to first for an out. The strong arm of Kevin Dorey (CTBS) accurately threw from short stop to first three times for outs. Teammate Luke Perkins connected with first from rover, and Erik Van Valkenburgh (CBTS) provided good coverage at first.

For TFK Alex Conway as rover threw on target to first, Dan Ellis made an excellent fly catch and Mike Oswald as rover stretched for a good field and throw.

Those hard-hitting RG Burgers met New Masters Gallery, who responded in kind. "Lots of hitting" characterized their Saturday game. Matthew Herbert (NMG) had four doubles with 8RBI, and Patrick White (NMG) had two doubles with 1RBI. Also doubling were Alex Brant, Brett George, Mike Hill and Lee Holbrook of NMG, and Joe Stoffers of RGB. Jimmy Stoddard, Max Rieser and David Little also delivered powerful hits for RGB.

Great fielding occurred between Brett George (NMG) at first, and Scott Spaulding and Greg Stutzman at rover for a few outs. RGB had some nice fielding by Andrew Tope, who tagged out a runner. Teammates Phillip Thornburgh and Chase Montgomery did a great job at rover.

Mustangs (ages 9 and 10): Carmel Bay Company mowed down Dean Witter (DW) 14-1 on Tuesday, May 26. Leading hitters were Jeff McGowan, David Blagg (twice) and Robby Wellington, all knocking out doubles for CBC. Lee Lightfoot (CBC) delivered a strong hit with 2RBI, and Andrew Arthur (DW) had two big hits.

A lightning throw from Bobby Stoddard (DW) to Andrew Arthur at first put out a CBC runner. In double-play action, Justin Travaille (CBC) tagged a runner, then threw to first for another out — Justin did this two times! Jeff McGowan (CBC) at short stop caught a runner at second, then threw to first for another double play. The game also saw good pitching by Jez Munyer (CBC) and Andrew Arthur (DW).

Coast Teleproductions (CTP) and County Mounties (CM) had a close one Wednesday, May 27, with CTP pushing ahead in the fourth inning. Both teams battled through a scoreless fifth and sixth innings to a final count of 11-9. The strong arms of Keith Sames (CTP), Patrick Thomas (CTP) and Brent Fogg (CM) whacked out doubles. Keith Kitaji (CM) and J.P. Danelon (CM) had nice hits. Caleb Etheridge hit and scored for CM. Trey Luster, Hans Lee and Danny Titherington all contributed runs to CTP.

CM pitcher Corey Wood had two scoreless innings, including a 3-up, 3-down. Jeremy Peacher pitched three innings, one run for CTP. Important defensive plays included Ben Borofko's (CTP) center-field catch and left fielder Caleb Etheridge's (CM) fireball to Daniel Myers at second for a tagout. Pitcher Brett Smith (CM) also zapped a ball to Jacob Hendrix on third to tag out a runner stealing.

Sensations (S) emerged victorious 9-7 when four runs in the bottom of the fourth put it ahead of That's My Boy (TMB) on Thursday, May 29. There was a tripple hit by Chris Canepa (S, doubles by Aaron Campbell (S), Justin McChesney-Wachs (TMB), Jeff Stutzman (S) and Mike Horsley (S). Memorable plays included one by Justin McChesney-Wachs (TMB) and Zarosh Eggleston for an out at home plate, and Sabian Ford's (S) catch and throw to first for an out. The game witnessed good pitching from Patrick Greco (TMB), Chris Canepa (S) and Jeff Stutzman (S).

Broncos (ages 11 and 12): Carmel Valley Disposal (CVD) beat Derek Rayne (DR) 9-2 on Saturday, May 30. Bes hitters were Ashwin Datt (DR) with a double and 1RBI, and Peter Jamison for 3-for-4, including a double and a single. Zak Freedman (DR) went for a 2-for-2.

In an outstanding double play, Trent Nishiguchi (CVD) threw to Reid Roberts who threw to Andrew Armanasco. Andrew also had some great catches that he then dispatched for outs at hom and third. Ashwin Datt (DR) made a terrific running catch in left field. Going all out on the pitcher's mound were Zack Freedman and Shyamala White of DR, and Trent Nishiguchi and Matt Borek of CVD.

Cornucopia (C) bested Vessey's (V) 6-4 later on Saturday. Matt Bedell (C) and Justin Henze (V) had doubles; Rushad Eggleston (V) had two doubles and 2RBI; and Sasha Vorobiov (C) had a double and 2RBI for the game's top hitting. Matt Bedell (C) had an excellent fielding day at short stop and at pitching. Erik Gillilad pitched two good innings for C. Alex Salmoun fielded well at third and center field for V.

Father Farrell's Wisdom

The tongue can be a lethal weapon

SAMUEL FOOTE was an English barrister who gave up the law to become playwright and actor in the 1740's. His gift of mimicry made him a figure of fear and delight among the London cafe society of his day. David Garrick befriended Foote and avoided ridicule by flattery. Samuel Johnson thought Foote's wit was irresistible until he became the target of his satire. He threatened to break every bone in his body.

London society considered Foote a man of many and varied talents, but his mind was incapable of employing his talents except in savage and unmerciful attacks upon others, even his closest friends.

He met his match. She hired "agents," Mafia-type hitmen, and they harassed Foote with such force that he had to leave the stage and retire to Dover in Kent, where he died, to the relief of most of his peers. He is buried in Westminster, to the surprise of his many enemies.

We all have the ability to put our foot in our mouth and sometimes we manage to put both of them there.

Oh Lord, help us guard our tongue and keep us from vicious words like those used by Samuel Foote.

The tongue can be a lethal weapon and if we live by the sword we can perish by it.

We delight in the verbal savagery of men like Foote until we become their football.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Ever since Social Security went into effect in the 1930's, people became eligible for monthly retirement benefits at age 65. This will change for future recipients, starting with those born in 1938. People born in that year will be eligible when they reach 65 and two months. Additional months will be tacked on in gradual steps for those born after 1938, until 67 becomes the age of full eligibility for those born in 1960 or after. People will still be able to request early retirement benefits at age 62, but their monthly benefits will be reduced according to the number of months remaining before they reach full retirement age.

Rose Quinn started her first job when she was widowed at age 62. That was in 1964, and at age 90 she still works at the electronics factory in Mount Kisco, New York. A few years ago she cut down to three days a week — so she could spend Mondays volunteering at a hospital and Fridays playing bridge. "I'm too old to retire," Mrs. Quinn quips. "Says a company executive: 'Rose is an inspiration to all of us.'"

Forest Theater is an obvious 'labor of love'

By PAULETTE WESTON

A STATEMENT was made to Cole Weston, president of the Forest Theater Guild, last week... "There is no more community theater on the peninsula." Cole would like to set the record straight. Cole has been with the Forest Theater for over 44 years and has directed many great plays including Our Town, A Moon for the Misbegotten and Of Mice and Men.

The Forest Theater has always attracted many competent amateurs to perform and to help with the technical aspects of running a theater. In the early 1920's several plays were even written for the Forest Theater.

Cole will be directing John Steinbeck's The Grapes of Wrath this summer. A part of the play takes place in the Salinas Valley and is one of the reason why Cole chose this play. Steinbeck wrote about our area.

Michael Smith, original music score, decided to only take one-half of his fee after hearing about the Forest Theater and our community effort to put on this play.

The actors and actresses are all volunteer. Many come home after a day's work to study lines until after midnight or have a rehearsal that lasts until 10 p.m. Some have to come to rehearsal directly after work and miss dinner. Cole said "I think this shows the attitude and type of actors we have."

James Alter, who plays Tom Joad, comes to the theater almost every day after work and both days on the weekend to help build the set. Ivan Flansburg, Grampa Joad, is 78 years old and is helping with the set on weekends. Elias Mavris, Connie Rivers, helped work on the set and is helping to hang lights. Rico Ramires, Camp Guard and an extra, also helped to build the set and to hang lights. This is the first time either Elias or Rico has ever hung lights. Kevin Cain, lighting designer, taught Elias and Rico what to do and both have stayed to work past midnight several nights to get the job done.

And it isn't just the actors/actresses who are working. Much behind the scenes work has to be done. Jim Edinger, a retired meteorologist, drew our logos. Both Jim and Babbette Edinger have given much time helping with the posters, leaflets and tickets.

We are also grateful to Dan Glosser, owner of the Forge in the Forest/The General Store. He has donated food and space for a cast party besides just being a person we could ask for anything and get it. As Dan said "The Forest Theater is our theater and the community should support it all we can."

These people are giving their time and energies to the Forest Theater without pay - just because they love it. And this is what a community theater is all about. A love for the theater and a willingness to work hard to do anything one can to make the play a success.

The Forest Theater Guild is also involved in supporting the community. The guild has turned back the ticket prices so more people on the peninsula can see a live production. Many of our children are growing up never seeing a live play on the stage. We are all a part of this community and as a part we must all work together. We all have something to share with the other:

The ticket prices are Thursday and Sunday nights, all seats are $5. Friday and Saturday nights adults are $10, seniors, military and students are $5.

The Grapes of Wrath plays June 11 through July 12, Thursday through Sunday at 8 p.m.

Arts & Leisure

Cherry Hall hangs acrylics

"ARCHAEOLOGY IN Time," a survey of recent acrylic paintings by Claude Philip Cirimele, will open for a month-long exhibition with Jennifer Colby's mixed-media paintings and three-dimensional constructions on Saturday, June 6 with a reception for the artists from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. at the Carl Cherry Center for the Arts gallery, Fourth and Guadalupe, Carmel.

Employing the language of post-modernism, Claude Philip draws together disparate elements to demonstrate the effects of time and history on an urban landscape.

Cirimele's visual elements — geometric, architectural and sculptural — evoke the weathered calligraphy of urban graffiti as well as the shared history of current world events.

Born in the United States and raised in Germany, Cirimele returned to Monterey in 1968 and studied art history, drawing and design at Monterey Peninsula College. Influenced by Anselm Kifer, Albert Ryder and Roman wall paintings, Cirimele says his work is a consideration "of the effects of time on painted surfaces. Some paintings show the touch of human hands, others the weathering of time."

Using wood, fabric, wire, clay and common household materials for her constructions, Jennifer Colby creates metaphorical homes for the human spirit in her 20-inch structures. Her acrylic and collage paintings on canvas echo her statement that "the spirit can be present through the material and that my journey is not solitary but reflective of being in community."

Colby has a B.A. in Art from University of California, Santa Cruz, an M.A. in Art from Fresno State, and an M.A. in Theology and the Arts from the Graduate Theological Union, Berkeley. She is curator at the Bade Museum, Pacific School of Religion, Berkeley. She lives in Aromas.

Cherry Center for the Arts exhibits are made possible, in part, through grants from Monterey County Cultural Council and the city of Carmel.

For more information, call 624-7491.

Authors on the march as local book-signings slated

Jan Reynolds

JAN REYNOLDS travels to the ends of the earth to research her stories. From the Sahara Desert to the Himalayas and from the Far North in Finland to Down Under in Australia, she treks sparsely traveled routes to make friends with foreigners.

Her daring efforts and studied insights into endangered cultures are reported for children in the Vanishing Cultures series published by Harcourt Brace Jovanovich.

Each book focuses on one child in one location through a simple narrative and abundant color photographs, presenting a slice of life from cultures that are rapidly becoming the equivalent of endangered species.

This fascinating native Vermonter comes to Thunderbird For Kids in The Barnyard for a booksigning reception Saturday, June 6, noon to 2 p.m.

Reynolds is a former member of the U.S. World Cup biathlon team, holds several high-altitude skiing and climbing records, was a member of the first team to circumnavigate Mt. Everest, ballooned over the Himalayas (and attempted to balloon over Everest), and has lived, studied and traveled in just about every remote corner of the globe.

Michael Murphy

MICHAEL MURPHY, co-founder of Esalen Institute in Big Sur, has written a book, The Future of the Body: Explorations Into the Further Evolution of Human Nature, which explores current documentation of exceptional and supernormal abilities evident throughout the world. Murphy concludes that we may be on the verge of a major leap in human evolution.

Monday, June 8 at 7 p.m. in the Whole Life Center at Thunderbird Bookshop. Murphy discusses his theory and signs copies of his new book.

Previous books by Michael Murphy include three novels, Golf in the Kingdom, Jacob Atabet, and An End to Ordinary History, as well as a work of nonfiction, The Psychic Side of Sports.

The idea for Future of the Body goes back to his undergraduate days at Stanford in the '50s where he heard about Sri Aurobindo, the great Indian philosopher who wrote extensively about bodily transformation.

For the last 13 years, Murphy has gathered data from many fields — including medical science, anthropology, sports, the arts, psychical research and comparative religious studies — in order to identify extraordinary versions of most, if not all, of our basic attributes, among them sensorimotor, kinesthetic, communication and cognitive abilities; sensations of pain and pleasure; love; vitality; volition; sense of self; and various bodily processes.

The evidence assembled in this book suggests that we harbor a range of capacities that no single philosophy or psychology has fully embraced and that these can be developed by practicing certain virtues and disciplines and by building institutions to support them.

Inorganic evolution went beyond its own bounds and gave rise to life on Earth, then animal evolution gave rise to human-kind. Murphy argues as a matter of course that human evolution can rise to another level where metanormal activity is accepted universally. This would create a new kind of life on earth.

Cynthia D'Vincent

ON SATURDAY, June 20, from noon to 2 p.m., marine biologist and author Cynthia D'Vincent will sign copies of her just-published, The Whale Family Book.

She has made it her lifework to study whales, and to help others understand and value these animals that are still threatened with extinction.

Though she is first and foremost a scientist, her writing reflects a great warmth and a deep respect for the whales.

She is also the author of Voyaging With The Whales, has appeared on ABC's Wild Kingdom and on an NBC Special, Ocean Quest.

CET intensives

FOR THE fifth year, Children's Experimental Theatre will offer two sessions of their Summer Theatre Intensive.

Godfather of Soul a prolific entertainer

JAMES BROWN will appear in concert at Monterey Fairgrounds on June 4 at 7 p.m.

In a prolific career that has dominated the R&B and popular music charts for over three decades, James Brown, "The Godfather of Soul," has reached legendary status rarely obtained in the music industry.

A two-time Grammy Award winner and charter member of the Rock 'N' Roll Hall of Fame, Brown's mega-hits include "Papa's Got a Brand New Bag," "I Got You (I Feel Good)," "Living In America" and "Say It Loud, I'm Black and I'm Proud."

A singer whose style evolved but never strayed from its roots in gospel and soul, Brown achieved a wide international following among fans of all races and cultures. Beginning with his release of "I'll Go Crazy" in 1960, almost every James Brown single was a hit; among them 74 R&B top 20 entries including 17 No. 1 and more than 50 million records sold. With the exception of Elvis Presley, James Brown has had more charting pop singles than any other artist in history.

At age 20, Brown joined the music group the Gospel Starlighters, headed by friend and gospel singer Bobby Byrd. The group switched its style to rhythm and blues and its name to the Famous Flames.

During a live performance of their song "Please, Please, Please," a Cincinnati-based record company representative spotted Brown and summoned the band to do their first recording.

When the original Flames group disbanded, Brown formed a full-scale touring group, the James Brown Revue. Brown was one of the most popular acts to visit Vietnam to entertain American troops.

In the 1980's, a new generation of fans discovered James Brown. He appeared in the blockbuster movies, "The Blues Brothers" and "Rocky IV," which showcased his hit song "Living In America."

In December 1988, Brown began serving a six and a half sentence for failing to stop his car for a police office and for aggravated assault. Many of Brown's supporters expressed concern that Brown was sentenced unfairly.

After serving fifteen months at the State Park Correctional Center in Columbia, South Carolina and ten months in an Aiken, South Carolina work release program, Brown was granted his freedom by a parole board on February 27, 1991.

Immediately after his release, Brown returned to the recording studio and cut

Love Overdue, in classic James Brown form.

In the year following his release from prison, Brown has been honored by The American Music Awards as the recipient of their 1992 Award of Merit; the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences (NARAS) with their 1992 Lifetime Achievement Award; and earned a 1992 Grammy nomination for his comeback album, Love Overdue.

Encore Music fest imports artists

GWEN HOEBIG, one of Canada's foremost violinists, and 17-year-old Hai-Ye Ni, 1990 first-prize winner in the Naumberg Foundation International Cello Competition, will head the roster of musicians who are set to gather on the Monterey Peninsula June 5 through 14 for the Encore California International Musicfest under the baton of Maestro Oleg Kovalenko.

Known since 1986 as Mozart in Monterey, the festival has recently been renamed Encore California International Musicfest to better represent the wide variety of music which the Festival presents.

Maintaining its commitment to bring world-class musicians to the Central Coast area, the festival will offer a series consisting of five chamber music performances and three orchestral concerts by the Chamber Orchestra of America, the festival's resident orchestra.

In addition, pianist Mark Westcott, winner of a Bronze Medal in the Van Cliburn Competition, will make a return appearance in the chamber concerts, presenting a solo piano recital on June 5, while Gwen Hoebig will team with her husband, pianist David Moroz, for a violin/piano recital on June 9.

Ticket prices for the five chamber music concerts and recitals are $12 each; tickets for the orchestral performances are $18 each. A series ticket for all eight concerts is available for $96. For further information, write Encore California International Musicfest, P. O. Box 4471, Carmel, CA 93921.

Art roundup: works from Haiti are featured

EYE CARE, a Washington, D.C.-based, non-profit healthcare organization is sponsoring an art sale, June 9, from 5 to 9 p.m., on the southeast corner of Camino Real and Santa Lucia in Carmel.

The sale is hosted by Sam and Shary Farr, Fred and Dee Farr and Francesca Farr.

Haitian paintings, metal sculptures, ceremonial flags, papier mache and Caribbean clothing will be on sale to help support eye care centers throughout Haiti.

Now in its second decade of work among the needy of Haiti, Eye Care originally set out to create a national program for ophthalmic care among the rural poor. Eye Care established four major eye centers at Port-de-Paix, Mirebalais, Jacmel and Port-au-Prince.

Recently, because of the overwhelming need, Eye Care has added a Child Survival component to its eye teams. Eye Care provides services to over 50,000 Haitians each year and is supported through the purchase of objets d'art from Haiti.

No reservations are required to attend the art show. A portion of your art purchase is tax-deductible.

Further details are available from Shary Farr, 4624-4246.

show at the museum. Mouth-watering delicacies from local French restaurants will be served with wine and champagne. Tickets are $45 per person.

Two outstanding lectures will be offered during the summer. The first, "The Splendid Centuries," will be given by Steven Nash, associate director and chief curator of the Fine Arts Museum's Legion of Honor, on June 11 at 6 p.m., and will be followed by a no-host dinner at the Stokes Adobe (Bindel's) afterwards.

The second lecture, "The Birth of Impressionism," will be presented by Gabriele Hahn, former lecturer at the Tate Gallery, London, on August 23 at 4 p.m., with wine and cheese following. Fees for each lecture will be $25.

"City Louvre," an internationally praised film with a behind-the-scenes look at the famous Paris museum, will be presented in the Irvine Auditorium, McCone Building, of the Monterey Institute of International Studies free of charge on July 23 at 6 p.m.

Kenna photographs

A PHOTOGRAPHIC exhibition of artist Michael Kenna will be on view at the Center for Photographic Art's gallery June 5 through July 24. Kenna will be featured as the center's Artist-in-residence June 5 through 11. His workshop/master class will be held Saturday and Sunday, June 6 and 7. His lecture, open to the public, will occur Tuesday, June 9. The exhibition's opening will be celebrated with a reception on Friday, June 5 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Michael Kenna's mysterious photographs capture an elusive light—whether photographed during the day or in the late hours of the night. A native of England, Kenna focuses mainly on the interaction between rural and urban landscape in Europe. Recently, he has completed work on projects featuring the Elkhorn Slough in Monterey County and the Palace of the Legion of Honor in San Francisco.

Fee for the two-day workshop is $150 and will include demonstrations, discussions and field sessions. Kenna will also review participants' portfolios.

Book Bag

By John Detro

A road less traveled

(Editor's note: Today's guest reviewer is a poet, translator from the Russian, musician and award-winning teacher at Monterey Peninsula College.)

By WILLIAM MINOR

Red Odyssey: A Journey through the Soviet Republics. By Marat Akchurin. Harper Collins, New York. 406 pages. $25.

WILLIAM LEAST Heat Moon, author of the best-selling Blue Highways (a book with which this one invites many favorable comparisons), set out on his trek across America having lost his job, wife, and the ability to sleep at night. No such personal extremities prompted Marat Akchurin to undertake the adventure which informs the pages of Red Odyssey — a troublesome-summer of 1990 journey through the Volga region, Central Asia and Transcaucasia of the former USSR, undertaken at a time when all "sound advice" was against it, including that of his wife.

Rich mix

Akchurin lived to tell it all, and the result is a rich mix — a masterful pilaf — of exciting, loving and loathing experience: a first-hand account of the Soviet system in its "death throes," shocking in its honesty, encyclopedic in its range, constantly enlightening, and often uplifting by way of friends — "islands of goodness" full of "mutual respect and love" — encountered at every stage of his journey.

Traveling through one-third of the populated territory of the Soviet Union, Akchurin was at first accompanied by a "Mozart of auto service," an invaluable Sancho Panza sidekick named Vladimir Liberman. Adventures (in Chuvashia, the first of a series of James Bond window escapes — having prevented the rape of a teenaged girl) mingle with more serene events: a loving pilaf dinner with an oil engineer's family in Samara (on the Volga), a family reunion in Tashkent; a day among the Bukharian-Jewish community in 2,400-year-old Samarkand.

Back on the open road, Akchurin encountered the "unshoeing" of automobiles (murders committed for car parts — given the paucity of Soviet repair services — considered more valuable than the entire vehicle); ubiquitous corruption (fictitious mafia-established fund-producing hospitals); the "cotton slaves" of Uzbekistan; abortions administered without general anesthesia: a continuous exposure to appalling conditions.

These stark discoveries are, mercifully, laced with many humorous tales such as that of Liberman's mother, a Ph.D. candidate rewriting her dissertation over and over again because such documents, in the past, had to be laced with the "wisdom" of Party Secretaries, and she got caught in the unfortunate sudden succession of Brezhnev, Andropov and Chernenko. Or the story of a man who had to "redeem" his wife from bandits after he'd sold them a car with her in it. Then there's the nationally popular joke about the USSR "as a unique state having an unpredictable past."

Solid information

In that distinctly Russian War and Peace (in our country, I suppose, Whitmanic, containing "multitudes") tradition of inclusiveness, this book contains much solid information on every topic from the possibility of Russia itself "ceasing to be an imperial center and become itself a colony of its former colonies," to Islam as "a mode of ethnic self-expression for oppressed national minorities" — discussions whose fervor left Akchurin wondering: "Why is no one in our country talking about the interests of personality?"

Safely returned to his wife and daughter in Moscow, the author of this remarkably rich account of a journey acknowledges the hope of new states that will rise in place of "the dying empire" he has witnessed. This portion of his Red Odyssey ends with a "cry out of love for life": the book — which was written in Akchurin's new home town, Pacific Grove — a must for everyone concerned about our shrinking and very interconnected, because very similar, worlds.

OUR AREA'S National Writers Union (Local 7) will participate in National Writers' Rights Day on Tuesday, June 9. The point of awareness: economic injustices visited upon writers by the multi-national publishing industry.

Local 7 will stage a one-hour protest and reading at noon at the desecrated John Steinbeck bust on Cannery Row (near Prescott Street). Poets Ric Masten of Big Sur, Don Marsh of Carmel Valley and John Detro of this newspaper's staff are scheduled to share work.

For more information on Writers' Rights Day, call Ray A. March at 659-4536.

Get on the good foot

SOUL SUPERSTAR James Brown may be the only performer these days who can bring a crowd to its feet merely by dropping to his knees.

Brown fans know that when "Mr. Dynamite" drops to his knees during his classic 1956 hit, Please, Please, Please, that he's about to get ready to go into his calculated, yet crowd-pleasing finale in which a member of his entourage will drape a huge cape around his shoulders to lead the ostensibly drained and emotionally exhausted singer backstage. But of course, Brown will take only a few anguished steps toward the rear of the stage before flinging off the cape and strutting full-strength back to the mike to finish off the song. This scene may be repeated two or three times at the climax of his shows, milking every ounce of emotion out of an audience. It's contrived, it's campy, it's Las Vegas kitsch, but it's pure James Brown and it works. And the audience laps it up with abandon.

It's routines like this and his patented, kick-the-mike-around-this-and-his-patented-kick-on-the-way-down acrobatics, as well as the antics of his frenetic band and back-up singers that have given

Brown the nickname, "The Hardest Working Man in Show Business." That, as well as the aforementioned "Mr. Dynamite," "The Godfather of Soul" and "Soul Brother No. 1," to name but a few.

Brown may be the single most influential black performer of his time; many of today's rap and R&B artists owe a debt of gratitude to Brown (whose songs have been sampled innumerable times and who's also been called the father of both disco and funk), and even influenced a generation of rock and pop musicians, from The Rolling Stones to Terence Trent Darby.

Brown may have broken through in 1956, but he really didn't hit it big until the mid-'60's, starting with his breakthrough Papa's Got A Brand New Bag in 1965, and continuing through the end of the '60s and early '70's with I Got You (I Feel Good), Cold Sweat, It's a Man's, Man's, Man's World, Mother Popcorn, I Got the Feelin', Say It Loud (I'm Black and I'm Proud), and Get Up I Feel Like Being a Sex Machine.

Those hits only scratch the surface of Brown's output, which continues to this day with his 1991 release Love Overdue. Of course he's had his turkeys, like the forgettable 1979 recording, The Original Disco Man, in which he tried to capitalize on a unsightly trend that he himself gave rise to, but his four-CD boxed set Star Time released last year has been praised by fans and critics alike as a stunning and significant anthology of an influential artist.

Brown, in fact, whose fame took a severe dip during the late '70's and early '80's, may have seen his career get its biggest boost just after his controversial 1988 arrest and conviction on weapons and traffic charges. Brown, in one of those "you don't miss 'em until they're gone" situations, may have become even a bigger star while in jail. People wore "Free James Brown" T-shirts and politicians as well as music fans clamored for his release.

Just after his release from jail Brown performed in a highly publicized pay-per-view concert 'hat thrust his career back in the spotlight.

Now for the first time in decades, Brown will play Monterey, appearing Thursday, June 4 on the Main Stage Arena at the Monterey Fairgrounds. The Latin-rock band Tierra opens at 7 p.m. Tickets, priced at $20, $25, and $30, are available at all BASS outlets as well as by phone: (415) 392-4400 or 1-998-2277.

UPCOMING EVENTS with a musical bent on the Monterey Peninsula and outlying areas:

- Shanty Malone's in the Valley Hills Center (3.5 miles east of Highway 1 on Carmel Valley Road), will feature an intriguing array of live music Thursday through Saturday, starting June 4 with Baaro, reggae superstar Ziggy Marley's tour band at 9 p.m. Friday. June 5 features the return of New Riders of the Purple Sage, and Saturday, June 6 the peninsula debut of Guardabarranco (with City Folk opening) at 9.

Originally from Ethiopia, the three Gessesse brothers and lifelong friend Melaku Retta formed the band Dallol, touring and recording with Marley, appearing on two platinum and a gold records in the process. They also recorded two of their own, Land of the Genesis (produced by Rita Marley), and No War. They're also part owners of one of the top reggae club's in the country, Chicago's The Wild Hare. Their music blends Ethiopian rhythms with rock and reggae, no doubt influenced by their stint with the young Marley.

As for New Riders, the "original psychedelic cowboy band," what more can be said than this is one band with some longevity. They band grew out of jam sessions in the late 1960's between founder John "Marmaduke" Dawson and members of the Grateful Dead, including Jerry Garcia, Mickey Hart, Phil Lesh and David Nelson. They're perhaps best known for their 1973 hit album The Adventures of Panama Red. Amazingly, Dawson remains with the band, carrying on the tradition and surrounding himself with topknotch bandmates. Cover is $10 for the show.

Guardabarranco is Latin America's premier nueva cancion (new song) artists with two releases out on the Redwood label, Si Buscabas and Disco Del Sol, the former produced by Jackson Browne, who said of them: "I was impressed by their songs, both for their melodic qualities and because of what they are about."

The music of the brother-sister duo from Nicaragua, Katia and Salvador Cardenal, combines their native country's folkloric tradition with modern folk elements to form a unique synthesis of old and new.

City Folk, the opener, is dubbed an "acoustic new-folk trio" with tight harmonies and rich synthesis of instrumentation. They're latest release is Catch A Glimpse on the Fall Morning label.

- Ciao Mein, the Pacific Rim/Italian restaurant in the Carmel Rancho area, continues its live music bookings there in its new "Club Ciao" every other Friday, with Macucho and Tocara set for June 5 at

Jazz Tides

By John Detro

Dr. Joe

HE WAS one of the kindest men — along with Dizzy, John Lewis, Clark Terry, two or three others — ever associated with Monterey Jazz Festival.

And his quiet but quick intelligence ranged wide. With this fellow, you could discuss your aches and pains, golf, the latest album by Wynton Marsalis. His passing creates a void in the lives of medical colleagues and jazz pals — of all who knew Dr. Joe Turner.

An "acute myocardial infarction" took Dr. Joe away from us late last month at age 70. The "thanksgiving service for his life" already has been held at All Saints' Church in Carmel. The family says memorial contributions may be sent to the MJF Education Program Fund — PO Box JAZZ, Monterey 93940.

The trumpet-playing Dr. Joe was living proof that a man can be gentle and effective at the same time. He was on the fest board from 1962 right up until the end, serving that panel as president during 1982-84.

One medical pro who truly enjoyed his role as horn for uncountable jam sessions and gigs with the MPC Alumni Band and Monterey County Symphony. He was an active member of the Hot Jazz Society and musicians' union — and part of the private group that bought the historic Ed Ricketts Lab on Cannery Row. Many pre-fest planning sessions were held there.

"Joe was in on (MJF) from the very beginning," says current board prexy Doc Etienne. "He was a dear friend of mine, and a wonderful part of the organization. Low-key, multitalented. We're going to have him on our minds a whole lot."

I sometimes saw Dr. Joe as both medical subject and journalist who required backgrounding on various political situations. He always exercised the gift of simplicity. I never heard him say a cruel thing or seek to seem important at another's expense.

What a rare and valuable human being.

LAST YEAR, Clint Eastwood gave $5,000 to the Music Boosters associated with Carmel Unified School District. And this time around, he doubled the amount, agreeing with Booster Lou Langley that jazz scholarships would be a grand notion.

Word on the first three awards drawn from Clint's latest gift came from Booster president Diane Eagle. Recipients got $500 apiece and were picked by Dick Robins of Carmel High Music Department.

All seniors: Zack Joseph (trumpet), Karena Shannon (trombone), Matt Sagen (piano). Zack and Matt won chairs in the MJF High School All-Star Big Band of 1991.

"They'll use the money for whatever higher education they choose," Diane said. "Of course, we hope that they'll continue their interest in jazz. We're grateful that Clint Eastwood valued this program."

Jazz camps

Sums of $250 each "for summer jazz camp studies of their choice" went to Carmel High 10th grader James Findlay (electric bass) and Carmel Middle School 8th grader Ken Hoffman (tenor sax).

"The rest of the money will be banked," Diane said, "with interest helping to maintain the scholarships."

AVEC FEELING: On Monday night, Doc Ricketts' Lab near Cannery Row kicks off the jazz series which had been occupying Sunday afternoons. Reedman John Cortes still serves as series booker. His tight group (with John Donaldson on piano), will continue to back guest artists.

Coming in June 8: great Chicago tenorman Red Holloway. Don't miss this master musician. First set at eight o'clock; just $5 per at the door.

Big band

• The same evening, Monterey Peninsula Jazz Orchestra starts a brand new run in the Brasstree Lounge of downtown Monterey's Doubletree Hotel.

"The venue was worked out by Doubletree rep Dan Brown and (KRML radio personality) Dave Kimball from our board," says MPJO honcho Eric Tonn. "We'll be out in force — 19 pieces. The usual non-profit admission of $5 apiece will be maintained."

• The Firehouse in downtown Monterey gives over Monday nights to the Monterey County Jazz Orchestra — formed months ago by players who used to be with MPJO. From 8:30-11:30 p.m. Upstairs.

• Cibo (very nice Italian restaurant at 301 Alvarado in Monterey) announces an eclectic musical slate for June. Wednesday nights: Brazilian jazz with keyboardist Weber Drummond and Dennis Murphy (electric bass). Thursday nights: Roger Eddy and friends. Friday and Saturday (6/5-6): Peter Barclay Trio (R&B). More on all this later.

• Kuumbwa Center of Santa Cruz spotlights tenorman Ralph Moore's unit on Monday night (6/8). Eight o'clock kick; $12 advance (Ticketmaster) or $14 at the door.

Moore records significantly for Orrin Keepnews at Landmark Records. Superb backup on this gig — vibist Steve Nelson, Renee Rosnes (piano), Peter

Washington (bass), Billy Drummond (drums).

• The Spirit of Africa Festival happens Saturday night (6/6) at Santa Cruz Civic Auditorium. Performing for the big dance: Reggae's Pablo Moses and the Revolutionary Dream Band, Titos Sompas's New World Symphony, Rhythmagics, bluesman Bob Lowery, Vukuni Mawethu Choir, Mbongi Dance Theater and Diamanocoura Dancers. Ticket info and detailed schedule: 1-476-0222.

• Don't forget the no-cost jazz shows on Sunday nights at Barbara Murphy's Portofino Coffee House in Pacific Grove. Guitarist Joseph Lucido and friends.

• Also on Sundays — Jazz Brunch at Kiewel's Cafe in Heritage Harbor with the trio fronted by keyboardist James Forkner.

• Papa Jake and those Abalone Stompers continue on Sunday afternoons at Big Sur's River Inn.

• Famed Brazilian percussionist Helcio Milito fronts the musical crew Wednesday through Sunday evenings at Trap's Lounge of Spanish Bay.

Vampire Lesbians. . .

PS Unlimited Productions has extended its production of Vampire Lesbians of Sodom with Sleeping Beauty or Coma at the GroveMont Theatre Arts Center at 320 Hoffman in New Monterey. The production plays Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays at 8 and Saturdays at midnight through June 20.

A special performance to benefit the Monterey County AIDS Project has been set for 7 p.m. Sunday, June 14.

The campy comedies are Charles Busch's first smash hit successes, which boosted him into off-Broadway fame, won several awards, became instant cult favorites, and closed as off-Broadway's longest-running show.

Overflowing with gender confusion, wild '60's dance music, breathless chase scenes, and sappy-happy endings, the show is outrageous and fun. If you like Rocky Horror you'll love Vampire Lesbians of Sodom.

Included in the cast are local stage performers Michael Pina, Olga Legan, Victoria Ledesma, Blaine Yeats, Donovan Dolan, Eddie Griggs, and Misty Sherman. The production is directed and choreographed by Patrick Spike.

Tickets are $10 general, $8 students and seniors. Call 649-0976 for tickets, reservations or more information.

This production is rated R; children under 17 must be accompanied by an adult.

Bleacher Bums

The 1992 Western Stage Repertory Festival continues with Bleacher Bums, the nine-inning baseball comedy, in the studio theater of the Hartnell College Performing Arts Center.

The Western Stage will continue its 18th season with the repertory festival production of Bleacher Bums through July 26 in the Studio Theater.

This Western Stage production is directed by TWS Production Manager, Al Strunk.

The audience faces the stands at a Chicago Cubs game and experiences a full nine-inning baseball game through the eyes, ears and personalities of several fans, whose enthusiasm ranges from intense to fanatical.

The nine-member cast will be seen throughout the season in other festival productions, which include Damn Yankees, the baseball musical, on the main stage July 3 through 18 (a theater double-header!).

For more information on The Western Stage 18th Repertory Festival call 755-6816.

The Voice of the Prairie

The Western Stage opens its second 1992 Repertory Festival production with John Olive's The Voice of the Prairie, a simple love story set in the first days of radio, flashing back and forth between 1895 and 1923 throughout the United States.

A young story-teller gains celebrity telling tales of his youth and the people in his life, all the while searching for lost love and an understanding of his roots. Traveling from town to city to town, one step ahead of new and officious government authorities, broadcasting over the airwaves like bandits, the veterans of radio created an inviting escape for families huddled over their wireless each evening.

Returning actors Tracy Bryce and Chris Graham are joined by newcomer Micah Epstein and between them play over 20 different characters in this clever yet ingenious play that evokes the simplicity and innocence of the period.

Tom Humphrey, managing artistic director of The Western Stage, directs The Voice of the Prairie with set design by resident David Parker, costumes by staff designer Marta Gilberd and lighting by guest artist and American Conservatory Theater resident lighting designer Derek Duarte.

The Voice of the Prairie will run in repertory with Bleacher Bums, the nine-inning baseball comedy in the Studio Theater through July 19.

For more information write The Western Stage, 156 Homestead Avenue, Salinas 93901 or call 755-6816.

Camelot

Camelot, the musical version of the King Arthur legend, has been extended for one week, through June 13 in the Main Stage Theater at Monterey Peninsula College.

Peter DeBono directs this MPC Theatre Company production.

The Frederick Lowe and Alan Jay Lerner version focuses on the chivalrous Knights of the Round Table and the tragic romantic triangle involving King Arthur, his errant Queen Guenevere and the king's trusted knight Sir Lancelot. Music includes the title song, If Ever I Would Leave You, What Do the Simple Folk Do? and I Wonder What the King Is Doing Tonight.

Cast includes John Newkirk as Arthur; Susan Adams as Guenevere; Carl Palme as Lancelot; Michael Robbins as Merlin; Bill Lindsay as Sir Pellinore; David McMillen as Mordred, and Susie Burns as Nimue.

Camelot will play at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, and 2 p.m. Sundays. Additional performances have been scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, June 12-13.

Reservations may be made through the MCTA Box office, 655-3200, from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, or the MPC Box office, 646-4213, from 4 to 7:30 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday.

Personals

OH, THE DAYS DWINDLE DOWN, to a precious few. These precious days, I'll spend with you. A provocative, classic lady who lives with style and grace. Who would delight in one last profound love story that would last for keeps or longer. Smile in my direction, with your heart. Please, be my valentine. I am an irrefragably attractive gentleman in the "Indian Summer" of my years (64) with a Latin heritage. I have a youthful outlook with traditional values. I dream of springs to come. I have a depth and breadth of eclectic interests. The child in me is ebullient, loves to banter, knows how to enjoy life. I am comfortable in all social situations, formal or informal. Come, resonate with me the varied rainbows of emotions and sensitivity. There are so many songs still waiting to be sung.

THE PETITION requests that Linda Gould Varner be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's WILL and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a formal Request for Special Notice of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in section 1250 of the California Probate Code. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk. Attorney for Petitioner: LAWREN S. LEWIN 10940 Wilshire Blvd. Sixth Flr. Los Angeles, CA 90024 Carmel Pine Cone

A BIT OF OLD SPAIN IN CARMEL

ONE OF THE GREAT houses of Carmel has come on the market for the first time in more than twenty years. You may have seen it while driving around the area south of Ocean Avenue—a Spanish-style home on three levels presenting a white stucco facade with an ornamental door and not much else to the street. On the other side, however, all the rooms face onto one or the other of two sun-flooded patios. The main house has a living room that could grace a palace, such is its size and high ceiling with its hand-hewn beams. Also in the main house are a charming dining room, attractive updated kitchen with colorful Mexican tilework, three bedrooms and three baths. Adjoining the main house is a delightful apartment with corner fireplace and legal kitchen. An unusual and special home! Motivated sellers. $895,000.

CLOSE TO THE BEACH

NEAR CARMEL BEACH and on a quiet street north of Ocean Avenue, is this attractive new home featuring a reverse floor plan...the better to capture stunning views of the ocean and Pebble Beach golf links. You'll find the living room, dining room, and kitchen upstairs, and three comfortable bedrooms downstairs. On sunny days, you can relax on the big terrace off the living room while you contemplate the blue Pacific and the gulls wheeling lazily overhead. $1,145,000.
